SOVIET 'PURGE' BROADENED AS INDUSTRY LAGS

Nation's Production Decline Held Sure Sign Of Enemy Spies In Country

ALIENS EYED CLOSELY

Russian Dentists Refuse To Treat Foreigners To Shun Sabotage Charges

By The Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Aug. 28.—A broadening "purge" of Soviet officials and lowly peasants within the vast borders of Russia was reported today as the nation's production fell well behind 1937 quotas—evidence, authorities said, of sabotage, diversion and enemy spies.

With many parts of Russia "spy conscious," records of death, disgrace, exile and imprisonment for enemies of the state have mounted in proportion to the failure of shops and factories to meet an ever-increasing demand for new materials.

Inspired by prominent Soviet newspaper accounts of skillful detection of spies and wreckers, men, women and children have become self-ordained detectives and almost any gesture may inspire someone's suspicious curiosity.

Soviet officials are silent, and only occasional press accounts enlighten the public on wholesale punishment meted out to the Soviet unfaithful. The known dead "enemies of the state" can be counted in hundreds; the lesser offenders, who are in prison or exile or who are demoted, total thousands.

So closely watched are foreigners that few Russian dentists will treat them, so they go to Helsingfors for dental care. Russian language teachers stopped visiting their foreign students weeks ago. Other Russians hold aloof from all foreigners who might bring spy-chasers to their doors.

Y. L. Yyttakoff, former vice commissar of heavy industry; L. P. Serebryakoff, former vice commissar of railways, and 11 others have been tried and shot. Other former officials and hundreds of small fry await trial as wreckers, diversionists, traitors, fascists and Trotskyists.

The fact that only 27 percent of the year's schedule in brickmaking was completed excused building delays. Production here and in other fields continues to increase but fails to keep pace with ambitious Soviet programs.

The press reported that the Siberian lumber industry was "full of enemies of the people." The personnel was shaken up. Production for 1937 is short in cotton textiles, machinery, steel, chemical fertilizing, coal and cement. The motor car turnout is below schedule.

Aside from reasons of wrecking, one publication, cites as cause for lack of production the independence of workers.

"Apparently," said the publication, for industry, "it takes two or three Russians to do the work of one American."

ENDURANCE SWIMMER IN WATER 102 HOURS

Zimmy Finishes Two-Thirds Of Marathon Contest

By The Associated Press.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 28. — Fighting choppy water, legless Charles Zimmy, 46-year-old endurance swimmer, today had paddled two thirds of the way to his goal in a non-stop swim from Albany to New York.

A fresh coating of grease protected his body from the numbing cold of the Hudson river.

Zimmy, swimming strongly but hampered by inability to retain much food, ended his 102nd hour in the river at midnight. His manager, Marvin Welt, said this topped Zimmy's previous record of 100 hours made in a Honolulu pool in 1931.

Welt, who said Zimmy was swimming toward vaudeville and side show contracts in New York, expressed hope the 145-mile trip would be completed in about 150 hours.

Zimmy, with no similar competition to spur him on, already had bettered the mark made by Otto Kemmerich in outswimming a sea lion. Kemmerich dived into a Berlin pool with the sea lion in 1928 and swam around until the puzzled animal collapsed after 42 hours.

Hull Warns U. S. Will Maintain Status In Far East; Japanese Bombs Kill 200

Secretary Declares Country Will Surrender No Rights Gained By Treaty In Note To Far East Officials

FULL REPORT SOUGHT ON BLOCKADE THREAT

Observers See International Complications If Nippons' Program Interferes With American Shipping

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. — Official Washington appraised today the implications arising from a flat United States demand that Japan and China respect American rights in the Sino-Japanese conflict.

A formal note told both nations they will be held responsible and accountablo for any personal injuries or property loss their soldiers inflict on American nationals.

Secretary Hull sent the note yesterday, stating unequivocally that this nation, while pursuing its traditional policy of peace, will surrender no rights or privileges the United States holds in China by international treaty.

Hull also called on consular officials at Shanghai to give him full details of reported Japanese intentions to throw a "peaceful blockade" around China ports.

Consuls had sent incomplete information supporting press dispatches that Japan was preparing to halt the movement of Chinese vessels.

Hull Asks Clarification

This information indicated the ships of other nations were not to be molested but, to make this point certain, Hull asked clarification.

Should Japan's plans be so all-inclusive as to threaten American ships, state department observers said, grave international complications could develop immediately.

A freighter, reported leaving Baltimore with a cargo of airplanes for China, may provide the actual test of whether Japan will attempt to stop an American vessel.

A sweeping blockade, observers said, might be considered legal evidence war exists and such a circumstance could result in President Roosevelt's invoking the neutrality law, which embargoes shipments of munitions to belligerents.

Pact Signing Revived

George S. Messersmith, assistant secretary of state, chose yesterday —the ninth anniversary of the signing of the Kellogg-Brand pact — to observe:

"More and more the realization is being borne in upon mankind that nations do not profit by the misfortunes of other nations, and do not prosper where rivals sink."

The Kellogg-Brand pact signatories renounced war as an instrument of national policy. Japan and China were among those which accepted its terms.

At San Diego, Calif., 1,200 marines made ready to sail tomorrow as reinforcements for the marine guard at Shanghai. They were expected to arrive around Sept. 21.

Shantyboat And Club War On Riverfront To See Court Interlude

WALTER SEEDERLY of Salem, formerly of East Liverpool, is expected to be given a hearing before Municipal Judge Frank E. Grosshans next week on a trespassing charge, filed by Thomas DeVille, treasurer of the East Liverpool Boat club, in a fight over riverfront rights here.

The defendant was charged in the affidavit with "anchoring two houseboats upon the real estate of the East Liverpool Boat club, contrary to law."

The action was taken after city officials had obtatined a promise from both sides to compromise on desirable locations. They indicated that Mr. Seederly, who operates a boat sale and boat hire business, would move his crafts downstream to a place formerly occupied by Grover Greer, wharfman, who also deals in boats.

The boat club officials point out that they leased the riverfront property from the city by councilmanic action, and have paid the first year's rental fee of $50.

The defendant was quoted as holding that the municipality was without power to regulate the waterfront. He had moved his boats to the club sector after being given permission by Mayor O. Earl Greenawalt.

The battle started several months ago when a string of five or six houseboats east of the wharf were required to move after the lawmakers leased the front to the club. It has now boiled down, apparently, to a test case between Mr. Seederly and the boat club.

Breach In Diplomatic Relations Expected If Japan Snubs Britain

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today ordered delivery of a strong note to the Japanese government in protest of the machine gunning of the British ambassador to China, Sir Hugh Montgomery Knatchbull-Hugessen.

The belief grew in diplomatic quarters that Anglo-Japanese relations might be suspended if the demands in Britain's note were not met within what Whitehall considered a reasonable period.

There was every indication the protest would be very blunt. Mere regrets for the attack by Japanese airmen Thursday on the Nanking-Shanghai road, it was thought, would not satisfy Britain.

The note which Eden instructed James Dodds, charge d'affaires of the Tokyo embassy, to deliver was believed to contain a demand for indemnity on behalf of the wounded envoy. The foreign office was expected to publish the text later in the day.

Sources close to the British government admitted that the possibilities for full satisfaction were "very limited," stimulating speculation on the threat of a diplomatic breach.

The attitude of the London foreign office was authoritatively pictured as one of "unbounded exasperation," but still as to rule out measures that might mean actual war. Many persons in financial circles

START OF SEWER PROJECT HELD UP

Appointment Of Agent For Certifying Workables To Retard Opening Date

The appointment of an agert here to certify workables on relief lists will delay the start of the $232,000 Carpenter's run sanitary sewer project until Sept. 5 or 10, Service-Safety Director E. B. Laughlin said today.

The job was previously slated to begin Monday, and materials are now being moved on the rights-of-way. However, only about 50 of some 275 workables on the welfare roles are certified and no attempt is expected to be made to start until at least 100 are available.

Council will meet Monday night to pass a resolution requesting the federal government to appoint a certifying agent, who probably will be Director Laughlin.

No Veto Action

No action is expected to be taken on Mayor O. Earl Greenawalt's veto of an ordinance abolishing the positions of three investigators, since the relief organization must be retained in order to certify the men on the sewer project.

James H. Stiffler, assistant division employment superintendent under F. L. Roose of Akron, district WPA director, today advised Director Laughlin he would come to East Liverpool Sept. 2 or 3 to confer with him and the mayor on the appointment of a certifying agent.

Director Laughlin today also was taking under advisement the proposal to issue poor relief bonds for $3,501.30 in back bills and continuation of welfare orders here to 1,269 persons until the sewer project gets under way and state aid is forthcoming from the legislature.

Will Reduce Load

The sewer job will reduce the load 50 percent, while state funds are expected to provide the means of caring for the other half, who are principally women, children and men incapable of working.

The service-safety director declared he would consider asking a report on the city's bonded debt at Lisbon, with a view to recommending the bond issue to council. He said Solicitor G. Jay Clark was favorable to drawing the legislation.

It was indicated that financial institutions here or the sinking fund trustees may be asked to accept the bonds under a plan similar to the one through which the city's share of materials for the sewer, amounting to $24,000, was obtained.

Judge Cites 'Ironclad Agreement' In Turning Down Motion

By The Associated Press.

DECATUR, Ala., Aug. 28.—A motion for a new trial for three of the five Negroes under sentence in the "Scottsboro" case was denied today by Judge W. W. Callahan.

The jurist said that at the end of the series of trials here in July when four of the nine original defendants were freed, there was "an ironclad agreement between attorneys there would be no appeal."

400 Others Suffer Wounds As 16 Planes Of Invaders Rain Bombs Upon Nantao Section Of Shanghai

160 AMERICANS WATCH CHINA'S LAND VICTORY

Shell, Exploding Near U. S. Cruiser Augusta, Forces Crew To Dash For Cover; Fire Peril Continues

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS
Associated Press Foreign Writer

SHANGHAI, Aug. 28—More than 600 Chinese non-combatants were killed or wounded and the whole of Shanghai was plunged into fresh terror today by a Japanese bombing squardron.

Mayor O. K. Yui announced 200 persons were killed and 400 injured when 16 giant planes rained tons of explosives into the humanity-packed Nantao quarter, adjoining the French concession on the southern side of the city.

Besides the normal population of the Chinese business and residential section, thousands of natives had taken refuge there.

One hundred and sixty Americans, fleeing up the Whangpoo by tender to the Dollar Liner President Lincoln, saw a furious battle between Chinese land forces and Japanese planes.

The result was a decisive Chinese victory. Two Japanese bombers, flaming, fell into the Whangpoo.

As on other evacuation trips which have carried 2,000 American refugees to safety since the battle of Shanghai began, bits of shrapnel and stray bullets from both sides sprinkled the Lincoln's superstructure.

No one was hurt, however.

A Chinese shell exploded tonight near the United States cruiser Augusta, flagship of the Asiatic fleet, sending the crew in a dash for cover.

No one was injured by the projectile, which was fired from a Chinese battery aiming at Japanese positions in the Hongkew section.

The explosion came only a few hours after 17 sailors, injured when a shell struck the cruiser Aug. 20, returned to duty. One seaman was killed in the Aug. 20 shelling.

Late today, in angry reprisal for the Nantao bombing at the very edge of the French concession, Chinese cannon shelled Japanese Honkew, which lies at the north of international Shanghai. Numerous casualties were reported as the shells burst near the Japanese police station and along Boone and Miller roads.

The attacks in the Nantao section swept over the sector several

HEART ATTACK HELD RIVER DEATH CAUSE

Body Of Charles Donahue, 40, Removed From Stream

A heart attack was blamed by Coroner Arnold Devon here today for the death of Charles Donahue, 40, whose body was found floating 50 feet offshore from the Broadway wharf at 7:30 Friday night.

It was first believed Donahue had drowned while fishing. Coroner Devon's examination, however, showed no water in the lungs, indicating death before immersion.

Police pulled the body from the river 30 minutes after it was discovered by Charles Dolan, ice products employe. Donahue suffered frequent spells and it is thought he fell into the river after an attack.

His boat, which he had been using all day, still was upright. He resided at 215 Broadway.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Anna Hughes of this city. Services will be held from the Dawson funeral home at 7 p. m. Sunday with Rev. C. C. Hanks of the Nazarene church in charge. Interment will be in Millwood, W. Va. cemetery. Friends may call at the Dawson mortuary tonight.

UAWA PLEDGES $400,000 FUND TO FIGHT FORD

CIO Affiliate Maps Vigorous Battle To Bring Company Into Fold Of Union

LEWIS SPARKS ATTACK

Leader Assures Delegates Of Victory; Foes Remain Steadfast In Stand

By The Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 28.—The United Automobile Workers of America mapped a "vigorous and continuous" campaign today to organize the 125,000 Ford Motor Co. employes, and pledged a $400,000 war chest to finance it.

Whipped to an esthusiastic peak by the leadership and peacemaking influence of their dynamic CIO chief, John L. Lewis, the convention delegates prepared the machinery for a drive against the "only outstanding automobile corporation that has not been unionized."

In a resolution, the convention pledged "full financial and moral support" of the union to the campaign in order that the U. A. W. A. will be able to sign an agreement with the Ford Motor Co. by the first of the year.

$1-A-Member Assessment

The resolution, adopted by a standing vote which developed into a demonstration, authorized a $1-a-member special assessment.

A few hours earlier the delegates had heard Lewis declare "it doesn't make any difference how long it takes to organize the Ford plants. The U. A. W. U is going to accomplish that task."

In Detroit, Harry Bennett, personnel director for the Ford Motor Co. and spokesman for Henry Ford, said the company "never will" make an agreement with the U.A.W.A.

In addition, the convention proposed conferences and house-to-house canvasses, to utilize posters and radio advertising and to schedule parties and picnics in order to reach "the racial language and cultural groups which the Ford company has brought into Dearborn and Detroit and has segregated in such a way as to isolate them from contact with other workers."

Lewis Rallies Delegates

Coming to the embattled national convention in the role of peacemaker, Lewis rallied bickering delegates by challenging Henry Ford, declaring for labor's greater participation in national politics, and by calling William Green a "traitor."

Lewis was cheered loud and long when he declared:

"Henry Ford may believe his will is superior to the will of his employes; he may believe he is bigger than the United Automobile Workers, bigger than congress in refusing to abide by the Wagner act, but if he continues to believe these things he will become a very tired old man."

"Some of these days," Lewis said, "he will get very, very tired and stop flying in the face of the inevitable and accord the right to organize to his employes."

There was applause when he said "labor is on the march" and added:

"The CIO has organized the mass production industries and is destined to carry on enrollment of millions more of American workmen who shall use their political strength to make this a better country."

In an interview later, Lewis said this reference should not be interpreted as indicating an intention to organize a national labor political party.

Lewis brought the convention to its feet shouting when he assailed Green, American Federation of Labor president.

Gangster Hunted At Cadiz

CADIZ, O., Aug. 28.—Sheriff J. E. Mattern was uncertain today whether James Dalhover, sought as a member of the Indiana Brady gang, was in Harrison county yesterday. Mattern and deputies searched over county roads for hours after it was reported a man resembling Danhover had been seen driving a truck at nearby Jewett, but failed to locate a suspect. "It might have been anyone," he sheriff concluded.

Pittsburgh Mourns As Andrew Mellon, No. 1 Citizen, Is Borne To Grave In Simple Service

Funeral Rites For 82-Year-Old Financier Conducted In East Liberty—Private Coach Brings Body To City

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 28.—Public funeral services for Andrew W. Mellon, 82-year-old financier—the banker's son who founded a $500,000,000 fortune—were held at 1:30 p. m. today in a Presbyterian church Mellon millions built.

A private railroad coach—something he never owned in life—bore Mr. Mellon in death back to the city he loved.

Hundreds of the city's great and small stood in the aging Pennsylvania railroad station, in the shadow of Mellon skyscrapers, to meet the "Pittsburgher" carrying the special car in which the Mellon family rode from Southampton with the last of the older Mellons.

From the station, the body of the former ambassador to the Court of St. James and the "greatest secre-

CROWDS THRONG TO FAIR OPENING

75,000 School Students Jam Grounds At Columbus For 87th Annual Fete

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 28. — The vanguard of an estimated 75,000 school pupils poured into the Ohio State fairgrounds today as the 87th annual exhibition opened.

Approximately 50 bus loads of boys and girls from all parts of the state arrived at the gates early. They were guests of the management.

National guardsmen, highway patrolmen deputy sheriffs, Boy Scouts and police were in the grounds to assist the youngsters and maintain order.

Three persons reported for treatment in the first hour at the Red Cross station, where 100 doctors, two nurses and eight staff assistants were assigned.

Judging in the junior fair division began early. The junior exhibitors held the spotlight on the opening day.

The first two days of the exposition given over to showing what they had raised and made in the past year, the juniors paraded their livestock and hovered around their exhibits.

Today and Sunday were an inno-

NEW RECREATION DAM STUDIED FOR COUNTY

State Takes Easements On Bull Creek Near Signal

Another Columbiana county recreation center, similar to Guilford's lake north of Lisbon, is under consideration by the state conservation division, and property easements are being taken for a dam in the Signal district.

The tentative location is on Bull creek near Signal, although no definite steps toward construction have been taken. A. W. Short of Columbus, chief of the game propagation bureau in the conservation division, said:

"Men are taking easements along Bull creek and keeping eyes open for a logical site for a recreation dam."

A survey party has been working in the area of the proposed improvement. If Bull creek, which empties into big Beaver creek at Negley, is dammed, a lake will be formed providing fishing and boating facilities.

No indication was given of when construction of the proposed dam would be started. An appropriation probably will be necessary from the state legislature before the improvements can be made.

Guilford's lake was established several years ago through the cooperation of the state conservation division, and has since been stocked with fish. Hundreds of anglers and boaters frequent the place.

NEGLEY SAND CO. ORGANIZED HERE

A. E. Frosch And W. H. Vodrey To Be Associated In New $50,000 Project

Organization of the Negley Sand Co. and plans for the construction of a $50,000 sand and gravel plant there were disclosed today by Albert E. Frosch of East Liverpool. W. H. Vodrey, also of East Liverpool, will be associated with him in the venture.

Mr. Frosch, head of the Eastern Ohio Sand and Supply Co. office here, said work on the project would be started immediately, and it is expected to be placed in operation about the last week in September.

The promoters have leased 65 acres of land from the Pittsburgh, Lisbon and Western Railroad Co., with headquarters in Youngstown, on an option of purchase. Renewals of the lease are provided for 30 years.

Site At Railroad Junctures

The site is at the juncture of the Pittsburgh Coal Co.'s short-line railroad from Smiths Ferry, Pa., with the P. L. and W. at Negley, and the source of supply will be a natural deposit in the forks of big Beaver creek and Bull Creek.

The plant, which Mr. Frosch said will be one of the most modern in the state, will serve the Youngstown district and eastern Ohio. It will have a capacity production of 100 tons an hour.

About 12 men are employed on the construction of a railroad siding, which taps the Pittsburgh Coal line. Materials will arrive next week for the plant proper, which will consist of steel superstructure with a concrete base.

It will be 300 feet long, with processing plant and storage conveyors, and will rise 45 feet into the air. The first floor will contain crushing and screening equipment, while the second and thrid will consist of storage bins. The superstructure will be unenclosed.

Six Grades Of Material

A Sauerman crescent scraper will be used to lift the sand and gravel into buckets on an endless chain, which will convey the material to vibrator screens, crushers, washers and separators, after which it will go into the storage bins. From that point, the sand and gravel will be loaded into railroad cars by crane.

The material will be graded into six standard sizes, three of gravel and three of sand. A power plant will be constructed for electrical operation of the machinery.

Mr. Frosch will act as general manager. He will continue, temporarily at least and possibly permanently, with the Eastern Ohio Sand and Supply Co. here.

MAN IDENTIFIED AS SLAIN FOUND LIVING ON FARM

Beaver Falls Resident Not County Murder Victim; Wife Makes Error

PHONE THREAT TRACED

Mistake Forces Authorities To Reopen Inquiry Into Mystery Gun Death

Special To The Review.

LISBON, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Laura McLean's identification of the body of a county murder victim as that of her missing husband was shattered to bits today when Prosecutor Karl Stouffer was advised Donald McLean, her spouse, "is very much alive."

That sudden turn had handed back to county authorities the problem of solving the identity of the slain man and the circumstances that left his bullet-riddled body in a berry patch near Lisbon, where it was discovered by three youths late in July.

Body Decomposed

It was so badly decomposed that only photographs of the skull contours and measurements of dental work were obtained. It was from these, and a piece of the clothing of the suit, a wallet, and the shoes, that the wife, a Beaver Falls resident and restaurant manager, concluded the remains to be those of her husband, who disappeared April 7 without leaving an explanation. The body was interred in the county home plot.

McLean, former machinist in the Jones and Laughlin mills in Beaver Falls, is in Warrendale in Allegheny county, living on a farm there. He said his clothing disappeared while he was in Pittsburgh, and added that might explain how his wallet was found on the body.

William Jeray, superintendent of the Improvement for the Poor farm near Warrendale, advised Columbiana county's prosecutor today that McLean is registered at the institution and that he came there on June 28 from Pittsburgh.

He told the fresh air farm head that he was robbed of his possessions while in a Pittsburgh transient hotel. He described the missing clothing and articles to the superintendent, who said he will send Stouffer a full list in an effort to establish the connection.

Stouffer later contacted authorities in the Pittsburgh transient home and was told that Donald McLean was once registered there and that he did report the loss of his clothes the day after the robbery.

Investigate Threats

Meanwhile, George Curran, prosecutor's office investigator, turned to mysterious telephone calls threatening the woman. Mrs. McLean said she was twice warned by a strange voice over the phone.

"Shut up, or you'll get what the other got," she said she was told. Then the caller hung up.

Another development in the case was the new information that a green automobile was seen pulling out of a side road near where the body was found. This occurred on July 4, the same day a woman reported she heard distinct pistol shots in the vicinity.

MEDIATOR LAUNCHES QUIZ IN RAIL UNREST

Leiserson Confers With Big 5 Brotherhood Officials

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—A federal mediator began today a series of conferences he hopes will avert the threatened strike of 350,000 railroad operating employes.

Dr. William M. Leiserson, member of the national mediation board, first conferred with officials of the big five operating brotherhoods who threatened the nationwide walkout after 86 carriers rejected their demands for a 20 percent wage increase. The organization represents the engineers, conductors, firemen, trainmen and switchmen.

After listening to the labor groups' side of the dispute, Leiserson will meet with a committee representing the operating companies. He said he hoped ultimately to arrange a joint conference of the disputants.

"It is hoped that an agreement can be reached," Leiserson said. He said he could not estimate how long his work here might take.

The mediator explained his position merely was that of a peacemaker, that he was conducting no formal hearings and that the national mediation board has no authority to hand down rulings or orders.

If the two sides reach an agreement, he said, it will require no further action.

HOD CARRIERS' LOCAL REFORMED FOR DRIVE

Reorganized Union To Enroll County Building Laborers

Columbiana county labor on the march today had a new recruit in Local 1171 of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union of America, reorganized with headquarters in Wellsville with 90 members. The union has jurisdiction throughout the county.

Alexander Phillips, president, said an intensive drive will be launched in the county to enroll all workers whose employment permits membership. He said the reorganization is part of a statewide drive. Offices have been established in Akron and Columbus to carry on the regional campaigns.

The recent election gave Phillips the presidency and put the following members in other posts: Harry Schmidt, vice president; Harold Grafton, recording secretary; Lawrence Jackson, financial secretary; George Rolley, corresponding secretary; Earl Congrove, seargeant-at-arms; Dominic Biscoglosi, guard, and Thomas Jackson and Paul Jordan, trustees.

Meetings will be held every Thursday at 7:30 in the Wellsville Democratic club headquarters at Fourth and Main streets.

The local, which received a charter as an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, denies a rumored connection with the district Workers' Alliance.

Chimes in the slender gothic spires sounded as the bier—flanked by industrialist friends as pallbearers—moved from the church.

Burial was made in the ivy-covered vault in nearby Allegheny cemetery beside the other member of the financial team "my brother and I"—R. B. Mellon.

As simply as he lived so Mellon was buried with only members of the family attending the final rites. All were there except the sportsman-nephew, Richard King Mellon, to whom probably will fall the task of directing the Mellon empire in banks, aluminum, oil an drails. He is hunting in Alaska.

State Highway Workers Pioneered Current Trailer Craze Back In 1920 To Save Expense

'Trucks That Couldn't Stand Gaff' Turned Into Homes For Department Employes On Ohio Road Jobs

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 28.—Trailers, a popular method of travel for thousands of persons throughout the United States, are not innovations to the state highway department, which started using them in 1920 to shelter road surfacing crews.

The first trailers used by the department were built on obsolete trucks—trucks that could not, high way director, John Jaster Jr., explained, "stand the gaff of gruelling highway construction work."

The first trailers were constructed to save time and expense. Surfacing crews did not need to return home, or to division headquarters each night, and then make the trip back to the scene of construction daily.

Next several trailers were constructed to be pulled by trucks. These were hauled from place to place and left trucks free for other highway work.

In 1930 the traffic division of the highway department purchased two trailers for traffic survey work. They were of the tent type, sleeping four men, but with none of the modern conveniences embodied in the trailer of today.

Harry E. Neal, chief of the traffic division, said he believed these were the first trailers used by any state in the union, in connection with traffic or highway construction work.

Today there are about 20 trailers of the old type, constructed on trucks or on truck chassis and pulled by trucks, in the various state highway divisions, Jaster said. Most of them will be replaced by modern trailers if the highway department's experiment with the newest mode of travel is successful.

The department recently purchased three trailers, costing $569 each, for use in division three with headquarters at Ashland.

"The trailers are constructed to sleep four men, and while conveniences are provided, the trailers are not of the de luxe type," Jaster asserted.

"If the use of modern trailers proves successful, more will be purchased to replace those built on trucks that no longer stand the gaff of highway construction work. It is an experiment, but an experiment that we believe will save money for the state."

BODY OF MISSING OHIO MAN FOUND IN SOUND

Coroner Returns Verdict Of 'Drowning' In Death

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 — A coroner's verdict that John G. Lowe, 52, retired New York and Dayton, O., paint manufacturer, had drowned in Long Island Sound ended a police investigation into his disappearance from a Boston-bound steamer.

Coroner J. Mott Heath of Suffolk county, after examining the body found floating yesterday in the sound, said Lowe apparently had fallen from the boat Tuesday night. There were no marks of violence.

A brother-in-law, Robert D. Patterson, said there was no reason to believe Lowe had committed suicide.

"He was happy, cheerful and had everything to live for," said Patterson of Dayton, after a coast guard cutter recovered the body between Greenport and Orient Point, near Long Island's north shore.

Lowe's disappearance was reported Wednesday morning when the ship docked at Boston. In his stateroom were $214 in cash, $1,400 in travelers' checks and envelopes addressed to "brother Jack" and to the housekeeper of Lowe's home in Essex, Conn. Both envelopes were empty.

ITINERANT PREACHER ADMITS KILLING WIFE

Consolation Sought In Bible After Hammer Murder

By The Associated Press.

LINDEN, N. J., Aug. 28.—A gangling itinerant preacher sought "consolation" today, Prosecutor Abe J. David said, in a well-worn Bible stained with the blood of the evangist's wife he confessed slaying with a mason's hammer because she threatened to leave him.

Lloyd Pusey, 44, described as a former farmer and tavern singer in New Jersey, told of a months-long continual quarrel as he and the woman drove across the continent from Los Angeles, stopping off at various towns to preach, David said.

The quarrel, David quoted Pusey, ended last night when the evangelist, threatened by his wife alternately with death and desertion, "decided I'd better get in my licks first" and bashed in her head in his auto as they neared the end of a trip back to the scene of the soil tilling at Oakland.

They met and married last October in Los Angeles where the woman, the former Mary Cannon, also 44, was preaching, the reported confession said, and all was serene until Pusey learned soon after leaving Los Angeles May 17 that his wife hed been married four times previously.

Pusey was booked on a charge of murder.

AUTHOR AGREES WITH CHANGE IN OHIO RIVER BILL

Rep. Spence Finds Roosevelt Plan For 3-Man Study Of Pollution Desirable

SCOPE OF TASK CITED

Effective Organization To Begin Survey Seen Within Four-Week Period

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Rep. Brent Spence of Fort Thomas, Ky, agreed today with President Roosevelt's plan of administering the anti-stream pollution section of the rivers and harbors bill and termed the Ohio river "a laboratory in which this great national problem may be studied."

In signing the bill the President criticized the Spence-authored section authorizing a survey of the Ohio river and its tributaries for pollution control. The President said the problem was one for the public health service and he would recommend the survey be made by a board of three, including representatives of the war and treasury departments and a non-government expert.

Spence said the survey was proposed with the thought that pollution could be prevented at the source and was primarily an engineering problem, and added:

"It is a problem big enough for both the army engineers and the public health service.

"It is practically impossible to purify the water after it has been polluted by big city sewerage and great industrial plants."

Spence said he understood that army engineers were ready to "get busy right away," possible with an effective organization setup within 30 days.

A compromise stream pollution bill was deadlocked in conference when congress adjourned last week, and will hold a preferential place at the next session.

The rivers and harbors bill signed by the President also authorized an expenditure of $1,338,000 for Lake Erie projects in Ohio.

They are: Put-In-Bay, $50,000; Rocky River harbor, $48,000; Cleveland harbor, $567,000; Fairport harbor, $145,000, and Ashtabula harbor $528,000.

The Union Jack, as applied to the flag of Great Britain, is a misnomer. "Jack" is a diminutive, on the sea, so that only a small flag is rightly termed as "jack."

FUNERAL FACTS

Some Light On BURIAL "SCHEMES"

"Why don't you build up your business by organizing a burial association?" a friend once suggested to us. "There are THREE good reasons: First, burial associations are insurance companies, and as such seldom live long. Second, any truly beneficial insurance company pays out in cash, not services nor merchandise. Third, burial associations usually obtain members by offering the privilege of buying funeral merchandise and services on a cost-plus basis—and we consider this offer unfair because the burial association determines the cost. "We believe a service as intimate and sacred as ours should be in the hands of thoroughly trustworthy persons of professional standing."

JOB FIGHT RESTS ON ENTRY ISSUE

Perusal Of Court's Official Opinion Waited Before Appeal Is Made

Special To The Review.

LISBON, Aug. 28. — The next phase of the legal battle waged by Lloyd Kirk of Lisbon, to oust Robert Wheatley of Salineville from the county engineer's office, is expected to center around a journal entry in common pleas court, required before Kirk may take over the post awarded him in an appellate court decision Thursday.

Attorney W. B. Moore, representing Kirk, stated Friday that counsel for both parties must agree to the entry before it can be made. In case of dispute the question again will be referred to the court of appeals for an "entry settlement."

Counsel for both Wheatley and Kirk awaited the arrival of the opinion from the court before outlining definitely their next step. Expected Friday it had not arrived at the clerks' office at the end of the day.

Wheatley stated Thursday he plans an immediate appeal to the state supreme court following confirmation of the decision. He did not indicate whether or not a plea for a stay of execution would accompany the appeal but this action is regarded as probable.

The court of appeals sustained Kirk in quo warranto proceedings filed by the latter to unseat Wheatley on the grounds he was not a licensed engineer at the time he was elected.

The opinion held that the temporary license held by Wheatley did not qualify him for the post and the court restored Kirk to the office until the next general election in 1938.

The validity of Wheatley's temporary license was issue in the court's deliberations. All other phases of the case, according to reliable sources, were covered in a similar case involving Adams' county engineers. The supreme court ruled several weeks ago that the incumbent in this case must turn over the office to the plaintiff.

JOB INSURANCE FUND COLLECTIONS SLUMP

Floods, Strikes Blamed For Decline Under Estimate

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 28.—A $120,000,000 payroll tax fund by Jan. 1, 1939, was forecast today by Walter J. Mackey, member of the Ohio unemployment compensation commission, who reported that collections for the first half of this year were 10 percent less than estimates.

Mackey said that the six-month figure would be about $18,000,000 or $20,000,000 less than expected. He blamed strikes and floods for the drop below expectations.

He explained that the money collected is turned over to the state treasurer who forwards it to the federal government to be held in trust under provisions of the social security act, drawing interest at slightly less than three percent. Unemployment compensation payments will start in 1939.

Employers of three or more persons contribute 1.8 percent of their payrolls to the fund, whereas employers of eight or more were required to contribute nine-tenths of one percent in 1936. Employers must pay 2.7 percent of their payrolls next year.

The 1936 collection was $17,025,000, from 18,000 employers.

75 PROSPECTIVE HAHN TRIAL JURORS DRAWN

Machinery Set In Motion For Poison Hearing At Cincinnati Oct. 11

By The Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 28 — The names of 75 prospective jurors to try German-born Mrs. Anna Hahn, 31, for the poison slaying of Jacob Wagner, 78, were drawn today from a jury wheel in Judge Charles S. Bell's court. Judge Bell had set Oct. 11 as the trial date.

Meanwhile, attorneys for Mrs. Hahn, who also is under indictment on a charge of slaying George Gseliman, 67, argued a motion before Judge Bell asking that a bill of particulars filed by the prosecution be made more specific.

In setting the trial date, Judge Bell consulted attorneys for both sides. Assistant Prosecutor Simon Lies asked that the trial be set for the "earliest possible date," and Defense Attorney Joseph H. Hoodin asked that the defense be given 60 days to prepare the case for trial.

REBELS REPULSE ATTACK ON BASE

Insurgents 'Destroy' Three Enemy Battalions Driving On Aragon Front

By The Associated Press.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 28—Spanish insurgents reported today they had "destroyed" three battalions of government troops attacking their concentration at Zaragoza, strategic intersection of lines between government-controlled Madrid, Valencia and Barcelona and the insurgents' latest prize of war, Santander on the Bay of Biscay.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco, in a communique, asserted his insurgent defenders of the old capital of Aragon, now one of his most important bases, had repulsed all enemy attacks. The enemy, he said, had left 12,000 dead in Zuera, a few miles to the north.

The government, however, reported that in a day of active fighting, with warplanes and artillery taking terrific toll of enemy ranks, government troops occupied Zuera, Peubla de Alborton and other enemy fortified positions in a great enveloping movement on the Aragon front.

Insurgent casualties and prisoners taken, the government said, were "enormous" in number.

The government forces, parched by 110-degree heat, drove their Aragon offensive forward with fierce fighting, Valencia reported. They sought to isolate Zaragoza from Teruel to the south, another insurgent stronghold. Six villages fell to the government in this thrust, it claimed.

The insurgents claimed capture of 11 battalions. Small insurgent bands combed the sector west of Santander and declared they had captured groups of government prisoners and quantities of munitions. One former Basque airfield yielded insurgents 30 airplane motors, the Franco communique said.

Santander itself, quiet after its virtual surrender, was taken over completely by insurgents who apparently acted to utilize its excellent harbors, fine minerals and rich farm and woodlands—all of them spared the havoc of war.

Andrew W. Mellon

THE late Andrew W. Mellon was an eminently successful businessman, a capable and diligent secretary of the treasury for 11 years and a philanthropist. Yet, it's not easy for some of his countrymen to make an estimate of him, because in the revised lexicon of virtues, business success, public office and philanthropy are as likely as not to be printed in small type at the bottom of the page.

This is confusing. No one knows what virtues should be printed in large type. Presumably, editors of the revised lexicon are going to find some.

Mr. Mellon came in for a lot of criticism because he made money in the old fashioned way, was guided by the ethics of rugged individualism, ran the treasury department like a financier and was a prominent figure in the Republican party during the era which came to an end in the depression.

Thus, he became a favorite whipping boy for prosecutors of the ballot box revolution which fathered the new deal. His public postion was unique; it presented him as a financier, a businessman, a politician and the advocate of individualism. He was subject to examination from many sides because there were many sides of him to examine.

He was simultaneously admired and criticized, depending on the scale of values against which he was measured.

From one point of view, he was commendable. From another point of view, a man who develops great business enterprises, who becomes a financial power, is called to public service by his party and believes in conservation of property could not be commendable—unless he happened to be a new dealer, in which case it was taken for granted that he had been converted and was following the gleam toward a More Abundant Life.

There are, of course, millions of Americans living neither wholly in the past nor in the future who look upon Mr. Mellon merely as one of a line of successful men stemming from Benjamin Franklin whose industry, thrift and intelligence always have been a credit to American character—and always will be.

Statement Of The Week

JAMES A. FARLEY occupies the high seat of political prophecy in the United States. His job is to know what's going on so he can peer into the future authoritatively. No one ever has denied that he's exceptionally good at it.

Last week, Mr. Farley made this statement to the press:

> The people of the United States generally are for President Roosevelt program, whatever it is. They believe what he has done in the past justifies whatever he does in the future.

That was another way of saying the President, himself, says when he speaks of his mandate from the people. Because he has been elected twice by an overwhelming majority, Mr. Roosevelt reasons, he has absolute authority to proceed with his prigram as he sees fit. Neither the legislature nor the judiciary should assume the right to impede him.

In other words, the sole question before the people last November was: Are You For Roosevelt An affirmative majority was construed as a blanket mandate to proceed. The Democratic platform was meaningful only to the extent that could be stretched or shrunk to accomodate the leader of the party, the same situation that prevailed after 1932. The plebiscite was not on questions of policy, but on Mr. Roosevelt.

No great amount of study is required to understand that this is not self-government but the beginning of a benevolent dictatorship. The electorate gives approval to a man, not to the policies of a party. Both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley now are on record for that conception of politics. The situation, as they see it, has been described in simple words at last.

The issue of personal government, henceforth, can be discussed without apology.

Matanuska Experiment

THE government's Matanuska experiment is being conducted for several purposes. Besides transplanting farm families for their own good, the government is interested in planting the seeds of a large American population in Alaska.

These are among the conclusions reached by Ernie Pyle, a newspaperman, who went to the Matanuska colony to see with his own eyes what was being done. In many ways, the Matanuska project is an interesting as the first colonies established in the United States.

There are resemblances. One of the problems of the American colonists was the shiftless member unable to make his own way. Various expedients were employed to stimulate him to greater activity—to bring him up to average lest he pull down the others to his own level.

But in the Matanuska colony, Pyle reports, "the colonists lean on the government. The former's notorious independence is gone. . . . this has developed in them what you might call a 'baby psychology.'"

The possibility suggests itself that the experiment may prove something in this connection which won't jibe with the new deal's faith in the helping hand policy.

Roosevelt's Means Fail To Justify Ends, So Powerful Middle Class Drifts Quietly Away

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

THE new deal has lost favor in the second administration of the President. That is a political fact. The reasons are numerous. It is no doubt true that with the return of a degree of prosperity, the tendency of this country is to become more conservative. It is also true that powerful economic interests, who have been accustomed to dictating government financial, taxation, and tariff policies for many years, are again becoming aggressive. But this sort of opposition need be no cause for alarm to the President. On the contrary, it enormously aids him, for it restrains, sincere liberals who swallow a great deal rather than help play the country back into the hands of reactionary forces who, in the great crisis, demonstrated neither mental nor moral leadership, but suffered an entirely deserved loss of public prestige.

Miss Thompson

When the ladies nd gentlemen of what used to be considered "the upper classes" gather together in the Piping Rock country club on Long Island to listen fervidly to Mr. Gerald L. K. Smith bring them a message of spiritual leadership, one only can reflect that the American plutocracy is as stupid a class as ever came to the top in any country; one can only meditate that the Alger book philosophy of "poor boy makes good"—the superstition which attributes to the rich special endowments of brains, energy, and virtue—is a myth exploded.

Actually, the greatest amount of brains, intellectual and moral leadership, and by far the greatest capacity for disinterested thinking are in the middle classes of this country. The families with incomes of from $2,500 to $12,000 a year—including the more competent farmers—are the families who have contributed the greatest number of names to "Who's Who," fill the intellectual professions, are most conscious of the American tradition, most critical of American society, and are most independent politically. And these people elected Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 and again in 1936. The labor vote also elected him, to be sure. And he can hold the labor vote as long as nothing more attractive offers itself at the left to split their ranks. But he is losing his hold on the middle classes, which in the last four and a half years have been standing with labor.

THIS does not mean that this large and powerful part of public opinion has become reactionary, or has changed its mind about desirable objectives, or wishes to go back to the tinsel prosperity of 1928 or the leadership of that time. It does not differ with Mr. Roosevelt about social ends. These people no longer believe in the sort of laissez faire which could be impervious to the dreadful human suffering of periodic depressions; they want social insurances, good and secure wages, fair treatment for agriculture, vigorous taxation of top-heavy fortunes, conservation of soil and the improvement of the public domain. They greatly distrust the intelligence of the banking fraternity, by and large, and were highly sardonic about the Liberty league.

But they also like good government. They also like fair play. They detest dictatorship a great deal more than the economic royalists do and a great deal more than the workers do. And they are drifing away from the President, not because they differ with him concerning his social objectives, but because they differ fundamentally concerning the means that are being employed to attain those objectives. Desirable as those objectives may be, these very numerous people are not prepared to sacrifice constitutional government and political liberty to those objectives.

Nor do they look with equanimity upon a class struggle in which they will be ground between the upper millstone of, say Mr. Girdler, and the lower millstone of, say, Mr. John Lewis.

They do like personal government, or "must" legislation, or laws drafted by an anonymous secretariat or the suspension of the deliberative process in congress, or sudden spectacular moves of dubious motive and consequence such as the judiciary bill. Nor do they think that an appeal to the self-interest of the masses is synonymous with altruism.

They were willing to swallow emergency measures in 1933-'34, but they are not willing to put the government of the United States on a permanent footing of emergency. Then they wanted action; now, they are inclined to believe that what we need is less action and more thought.

AS TO personal government; The President demonstrated early in his first administration that he conceives of the Presidency in terms of personal dictation. The most flagrant example was the Humphrey case. W. E. Humphrey was a member of the federal trade commission, appointed under law for a definite term, and removable during that term only for "inefficiency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office." The stated object of the legislation which established the commission was to create a body of experts who should gain experience by length of service, be independent of the executive authority, and free to exercise their judgment. Mr. Roosevelt was hardly in office when he asked for Mr. Humphrey's resignation on the ground that "the aims and purposes of the administration with respect to the work of the commission can be carried out most effectively with personnel of my own choosing." And later he wrote Mr. Humphrey, . . . I think it best for the people of the country that I should have full confidence."

Mr. Humphrey died out of office and his estate sued for back pay from the time he left until his death. A unanimous decision of the Supreme Court sustained the estate, and ruled that the President had overstepped his perrogatives.

Had the President's action passed unchallenged, it also would have gone far to destroy the very basis for a decent civil service—something which the country seriously needs and will need increasingly if the powers of government extend. But the President proposes to extend those powers while gathering up into the executive authority powers which have resided hitherto in independent quasi-judicial bodies like the federal trade commission (see the executive reorganization bill); in congress itself (through legislation written in the White House and recommended for speedy passage with the assistance of Mr. Farley); and by assuring himself a majority on the supreme bench.

It will be impossible to prevent the people of the United States—or many of them—from asking what all this has to do with the attainment of social objectives. It will be impossible to quench their doubts that this sort of procedure is "liberal." Whatever diminishes the prestige of congress is illiberal. And nothing can so diminish that prestige as its capitulation as a deliberative body, its capitulation to party pressure, to outside legislators, to the vote-gathering propensities of a popular leader.

FOR democratic parliamentary government has a philosophical basis. It was the product of an age of enlightenment and is based in confidence that through human reason mankind can achieve mastery over nature and himself. That way is to be pursued by deliberation—by discussion—by reflective thought. The word Parliament comes from parler—to talk things over; "congress" implies that men congregate for collective deliberation. "Government and legislation," said Edmund Burke in a famous passage, "are matters of reason and judgment. And"—he asked, in words as pertinent to our times as to his—"what sort of reason is that in which predetermination precedes the discussion."

"To deliver an opinion," he said, further, "is the right of all men. . . . But authoritative instructions, mandates issued, which the member is bound blindly and explicitly to obey, to vote, and to argue for, though contrary to the clearest conviction of his judgment and conscience—these are things utterly unknown to the laws of this land, and arise from a fundamental mistake of the whole order and tenor of our Constitution. Parliament is not a congress of ambassadors from different and hostile interests, which interest each representative must maintain. But parliament is a deliberative as-

Uncle Sam's Billionitis

THE United States government has borrowed some more money from the banks, enough to shove the national debt total past the 37th billion mark. The New York Times, commenting on the passing of another milestone in the billionitis race, said:

For most of us this is like reading that Finsler's comet was within 56 million miles before it curved out again into space. Figures like these are too large to be easily comprehensible. But what can be more readily understood, in the case of the national debt, is that it has doubled in the last six years; that the per capita debt is now nearly 25 times as large as it was in the year before the war, and that the cost of carrying this debt imposes a charge on every salaried person and every wage earner in the country, either through direct taxation, through one or another of a dozen different kinds of indirect taxation, or through an increase in the cost of living.

The greatest single failure of the session of congress which ended on Saturday was its failure to assure the country of a balanced budget which would preclude further borrowing by the treasury and a further increase of the debt. The President himself proposed, when congress first convened, one of the largest peacetime spending budgets ever to be submitted. But at various points congress then proceeded to top this budget with appropriations in excess of the President's estimates. Against these increases Mr. Roosevelt protested on more than one occasion. Twice he vetoed a bill which added to the government's obligations, only to have congress override his veto.

The most significant and least reassuring fact in the present situation is that the budget remains unbalanced even though the government's anticipated revenues for this very fiscal year will rise to the highest figure ever reached in the whole history of the country. If the United States cannot stop borrowing with its revenues at such a peak, how can it expect ever to stop borrowing at all? This is precisely the time when the country should be reducing its indebtedness rather than increasing it; bringing it down to more manageable proportions, and jealously conserving the national credit for whatever lean years may lie ahead.

Roosevelt Draws Battle Lines For Test Of Sentiment On Court Issue In 1938 Election

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—If ever there was a doubt, President Roosevelt now has cleared the air. He asks the American people, in effect, to say by their votes in the 1938 congressional elections whether they approve or disapprove his desire to influence the decisions of the Supreme Court by adding enough justices to guarantee an interpretation of the Constitution in accordance with his political philosophy.

The President's announcement, made in connection with the signing of the bill to revise lower court procedure, significantly mentioned his confidence that, in urging his court plan, he has been speaking "in behalf of the American people." Why he assumes or infers such a mandate is a mystery, for no hint of his scheme was given in the campaign of 1936. In fact, it was emphatically denied by such prominent spokesmen of the administration as Joseph P. Kennedy that Mr. Roosevelt had any desgns on the Supreme Court.

The test, therefore, of Mr. Roosevelt's assumption that he speaks for the people on this issue only can come in another election Coincident with Mr. Roosevelt's announcement came also a clarifying statement from Postmaster General Farley, who frankly admits that the Democratic national committee will not undertake reprisals against Democratic senators who fought the President's court plan, but he naively confesses at the same time that he doesn't know what "the voters" may do to these senators at the polls. Also, he says these "anti-court senators" will have a lot of explaining to do to their constituents. Naturally, the voters are going to take the issue into their own hands, and while Mr. Farley himself will lay off, all the allies of the administration, all the false "non-partisan" leagues, and all the so-called "good neighbor leagues" and all the John Lewis battalions are to be turned loose against these independent Democrats. Ostensibly, Mr. Farley will wash his hands of any formal responsibility. The punitive tactics will be taken up most informally, but just as effectively, by the army of federal office holders and parasites who get money from the new deal in almost every state in the union.

ALTOGETHER, the friends of an independent judiciary, Republicans and Democrats, now have full and frank warning. It has come more than a whole year in advance of the congressional elections, and there can be no charge hereafter that the administration concealed its purposes in advance of an election. Sen. Guffey's speech sounding the keynote of the campaign, the President's address in North Carolina, John Lewis' blast against the southern Democrats, and now Chairman Farley's signal to the new deal's sabotage troops to get busy behind the lines and kill off the independent Democrats, all have come in the space of one week. These incidents all fit together as a definite proposal to carry the court fight to the people.

Friends of an independent judiciary ought to welcome the challenge, but they will find that federal money is a hard thing to beat unless a fusion of independent Democrats and Republicans can be effected. It is often overlooked that the President's scheme was beaten, if only temporarily, at the last session of congress by a fusion of about 33 Democrats and 16 Republicans and that the independent Democratic strength was less than half of the total Democratic vote in the senate.

So, acting alone, the independent Democrats could not have accomplished anything without the support of the Republicans, and, conversely, the Republicans as a minority were helpless without the independent Democrats. If fusion was possible and imperative in the United States senate, it is even more essential out in the states and districts where senators and representatives are to be elected in 1938.

Mr. Roosevelt doesn't hesitate to use the fusion idea to draw to his side the La Follettes and the Norrisses. Party labels worry him so little that, last year, he appealed in person to the voters of Nebraska to disregard the Democratic candidate for United States senator who had been nominated in the regular Democratic primary.

THE President is interested in only one thing—getting and keeping his majority. His opponents have helped him along heretofore by refusing to budge on the question of party reorganization. In 1936, the Republican party at Cleveland did nothing to attract

New York Notes

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—As the years crowd down most of us begin to day dream of the Trail's End. That haven we hope to find when we call it a day and take life in easier strides, laugh at the alarm clock, catch up with our porch rocking and meditate on the blessed promises.

Every city man has his fleeting moments when he wants to bolt. When his window panorama reveals nothing but cold asphalt, aloof towers of spun steel and the maddening swirl of a precipitate humanity. And he sighs for an Arcadia without the shattering honk of a motor horn.

He longs for the enchanting vista of a brook-watered pasture, sunny meadowland and sloping hillsides. Hidden gurgles of spring, circled by moss and such. He wants to feel soil under his feet instead of the dessicating tread of cement walked hardness. Pink blossomed mooning, of course. Utopia never achieved.

A kindly French curate over the checker board in his garden of a little Provence village once told me the tragedy of most men of success was they lacked courage to quit. To follow Jason and the Golden Fleece, and he was right.

I was musing by the Hudson in the glow of a marvelous sundown this evening how nice it would be to renounce the banality of high pressure living and drift with the pleasant currents. To trade the topsy-turvy of the crowded artifice for the serenity of the natural calm civilization seems to have muffed. It is trite but true that the successful men I know express the tautness of a fiddle string. And one day naturally they snap—and for what?

No successful man seems immune from the hypnotism of the modern hurrah. He will tell you he wants to get away from it, speaking tremulously of the fantasy he conjures between directors' meetings. The home set in maples far back from the road, the selected library, hunting dogs, the wild bird life and the stable of horses. Yet in his heart he knows it's fabrication. He would be in a dither if the morning paper were not at his plateside at breakfast. He would champ at missing the highball or cigar at his favorite club after market closes.

For me the world's alarms grow more frightening with each fresh headline. No reasonable person is not conscious many things are wrong. There is, too, something terrorizing in the inescapability of a gathering avalanche, hell bent on destruction I have the good fortune to be in contact with both city, village and isolation of the farm, and I say the more remote people are from mass population the happier. The most contentful letters come from lost places, often 50 miles from a depot and without civilizing influences of the movies, telephone or telegraph.

I have been too long of the city now perhaps to forsake it. But I had a background of the rustic simplicities and in my journey from the coal oil lamp to the Neon's I know people of the smaller communities acquire more of happiness, health and mental peace than we of cities.

In this connection I quote from a city lady now of a tiny town in remote Idaho who sums up the city vs. country with gusto and sanity. She writes: "Our radio broadcasts 'Slumming on Park Avenue,' a tune which should make me quite blue I was born on that illustrious street 33 years ago. And I danced the merry dance that went with prosperous years. Then the old story. Wall Street and my husband's physical and financial crackup. We came out here to a scrubby ranch the creditors somehow overlooked. Four miles from even a general store. In three years my husband's health is restored to a ruggedness he never knew. I haven't had a professional manicure or expert hair dressing since we arrived. We eat three meals a day like starving wolves. And we have $198 in the bank and prospects of a crop sufficient for needs. Are we happy—I'll say. Oh, yes, and important we discover we are really in love. Our affections used to rise and fall with the number of cocktails we consumed. And we find it more fun to go to bed dead tired at 8 o'clock than to drag from night club to night club until sunup."

Diplomatic Toe-Dancing

IT IS simply amazing the amount of diplomatic toe-dancing that goes on because the United States has to go through the steps of getting out of the China war zone without really asserting publicly that it is a war. Of course there is carnage, and enough marching and counter-marching to drive the Spanish civil war off page one. Yet we have recognized Spain's war.

Secretary Hull quite evidently would like to step in with the good offices of the United States and bring an end to wars wherever they break out. But he may not say so publicly. In rejecting the League of Nations and world court this country quite definitely said: "Devil take your foreign wars. Hereafter we are hands off."

It was a blossoming of that spirit which brought on the so-called neutrality act under which the United States, in theory, must pull its neck turtle-like into a shell whenever the shot and shell begin falling any place in the world.

In theory it is that way. The theory may have worked in the case of Italy and Ethiopia and again in the case of Spain. But in the case of the Japanese-Chinese outbreak the state department is required to pile a theory upon a theory. It must hold to the theory that the neutrality act is in fact being followed when truly enough it is being side-stepped.

The neutrality act provides that upon the outbreak of war the President must proclaim the fact. The proclamation automatically shuts off all supplies of arms, munitions and implements of war to the belligerents and sets up a chain of procedure likely in time to lead to suspension of all trade with them.

But Mr. Hull wants to preserve peace. The neutrality act is not designed primarily to preserve peace. It is designed to keep the United States from getting in the way of enemy shells or topedoes. Since the neutrality act leaves it discretionary with the President to decide when war actually begins, Mr. Hull, as the President's agent, will continue to work and plead for peace until the existence of war becomes so oppressive he can deny it no longer.

Thus you have Mr. Hull asking in his latest peace statement that China and Japan, "refrain from hostilities." If he had said "suspend hostitilities" it would have been an admission that there were hostilities. Such an admission would have required that the neutrality act be called into effect.

All this time Mr. Hull must direct the evacuation of Americans from the scene of conflict. He must protest against too much shooting over Yankee property in the Orient. Yet the state department does not even refer to Shanghai as the "war zone."

But there is evidence that in the minds of some public officials there is a feeling that it is a "war zone" in fact, Sen. Pittman of Nevada, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, defended at length Mr. Hull's position. He said there was nothing yet to indicate it was a really and truly war. But down in his speech he remarked that the present prime duty of the Secretary of State was to remove our citizens from the "war zone."

Oh, well, we can't all be so careful as the state department.

Daily Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, August 29.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds testimony of disturbed, disagreeable and probably sinister affairs that may cause either loss and confusion or an emotional upset that would prove disastrous. There are omens of strife, recklessness, jealousy and enmity as well as undercurrent situations. Change may be desirable to meet this mysterious menace.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to encounter a year of some chaotic, peculiar or intriguing conditions that may incite them to strife, enmity, jealousy and rash or violent activities. Such indulgences may prove distressing if not disastrous, and conditions might best be mended by change or removal, "discretion being the better part of valor."

A child born on this day may have a conflicting and contradictory nature, with deep, designing and subtle proclivities.

For Monday, August 30

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for fairly pleasant and profitable conditions in the realm of the domestic, social or affectional interests, while business seems to be clouded by trickery, dishonesty, false repute, or other adverse influence. All these call for cleverness, wariness and discretion, especially in relation to business papers, "talk" or writings.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly active year, but with the social, domestic of romantic life claiming paramount attention. Deceit, gossip, rumor or subtle frauds loom, and call for vigilance, precaution and fine acumen to avert dangers and distress.

A child born on this day may be clever and adaptable, but a tendency to carelessness with writings and in speech may subject it to criticism and many difficulties in life. It should have early training in this regard.

The Teams Practice

ON CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS CROW'S side were Honey Bear, Black Bear, Chubby Bear, Willy Nilly, Mr. Quacko Duck, Top Notch, Yellow Beak and Quacky.

On Rip's side were Jelly Bear, Jupiter Bear, Sweet Face, Mrs. Quacko, Quackles, Mr. White Duck, Black-and-White Wings and Mrs.

Quackles. Of course a number of the duck members of the teams were quite young but the captains hoped they would turn out to be wonderful discoveries.

Both teams went over to Sweet Face's meadow, Willy Nilly marked out the diamond and the two captains, Christopher and Rip, decided where the lines leaving the field for home-runs would be placed. They also put down burlap bags for the bases.

It was decided that the bears, Rip, Sweet Face and Willy Nilly would have to catch any ball for an "out," but that the ducks and Top Notch and Christopher would only have to knock down the balls with their wings and keep their wings over them for a "fly," while all would be allowed to throw, or push the ball with their feet, in assisting in a put-out.

It was not very long before they had decided on all the rules, and now Jolly Bear and Honey Bear started to warm up as pitchers.

Christopher's team took to the field first and Rip's team were at bat.

Honey Bear discovered she was at her best as a south-paw pitcher and no one got on base until Rip, the third one up, came to bat. He got a base on balls and trotted down contentedly to the first base. Then Honey Bear had to keep her eye on him, and so did Blacky, who was catching. Would Rip manage to steal second base?

CHANNEL SURVEY WORK LAUNCHED AT 5 ZONE DAMS

Engineers Take Soundings From New Cumberland To Wellsburg, W. Va.

IMPROVEMENTS SEEN

$18,300,000 Tygart Flood Control Project To Be Finished By Dec. 1

Channel soundings above and below the bear traps and the checking of gauges at dams 12 and 13 near Martins Ferry and Bellaire have been completed by United States engineers, and a similar survey started at locks No. 9, 10 and 11 at New Cumberland, Steubenville and Wellsburg, W. Va.

The federal party will make a report to District Engineer Col. W. E. R. Covell for guidance in future navigation improvements. The location of bars and other obstructions were marked for removal by government floating equipment.

Announcement was made today the tri-state district's No. 1 flood control project on the Tygart river near Grafton, W. Va., will be ready for acceptance by the federal government about December 1.

Officials of Frederick Snare Corporation, builders of the dam, said that the final stage in the construction of the $18,300,000, project will be reached on November 1. Final concrete pours will be made on the last remaining monolith in the main wall on September 18.

Flood Wall Repair Made

In the same connection, the Tygart River Reservoir land appraisals are being made for condemnation proceedings. Data was being assembled for maps showing parcels of land obtained for the relocation of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, made necessary by the building of the reservoir. A commission of five appraisers, has been appointed by the United States district court at Elkins, W. Va. to view the lands being condemned for this purpose.

A report on flood walls at McKees Rocks, Pa., and Pittsburgh was completed within the last week. The United States engineers also completed a report on the possible construction of flood walls and levees with relief funds.

United States engineers are advertising for bids for 320 tons of coal to be used at locks 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13.

Col. R. G. Powell, division enginner of the Ohio river, has inspected the work in this district. Dredging operations have begun at Indian Run Bar, pool No. 13, at McMechen, W. Va.

U. S. Contracts Awarded

The government engineers have awarded a contract to the Transfer Manufacturing Co., of Pittsburgh, for two galvanized structural steel gasoline tanks for Emsworth dam. The Shenango Penn Mold company, of Dover was awarded a $428.80 contract for 32 valve shaft bushings for Emsworth locks.

Traffic through dam 8 here today included the Kinzua, up with one empty barge and the Allegheny down with five empty barges and one of scrap iron.

The Sam Craig was down with two barges of pipe and one of wire. The LaBelle went down with nine barges of coal and up with nine empties. The Bernice was down with one empty barge. The Diesel was also down with an empty, and the Atlas, down with five empties.

WINONA, Aug. 28.—This rural village went into its second and closing day of festival today, celebrating an annual homecoming with an extensive program of speech-making, a pioneer pageant, and numerous contests and demonstrations. The celebration opened Friday.

Thurman 'Dusty' Miller, well known humorist and commentator, was to be principal speaker of the afternoon event program while flax scoutching demonstrations and a display of old-fashioned apple-butter making equipment with a demonstration of their use were other events.

Trap and target shooting events and horse pulling contests with entertainment by the Beach City High school band were scheduled.

SENTIMENT ON COURT FACES ELECTION TEST

the independent Democrats. Having spurned the Democratic voters once, it is not likely that the Republicans of the enlightened and progressive school who really ought to be the leaders will allow their conservative brethren to make the same suicidal mistake.

It is not a question of merely changing a party name, but of developing a leadership group of such prestige that will appeal to the people as forward-looking. Such a leadership, concentrating on the congressional campaign, can really put up a fight even against the kind of warfare which corrals votes by relief mechanisms and AAA money.

Mr. Farley is supremely confident that Mr. Roosevelt could be reelected today by the same majority as in 1936. The 40 or more state machines of the Democratic party with which Mr. Farley has been keeping in touch constantly since the last campaign would probably function well again. But it is one thing to win an election with the Roosevelt personality actually to be voted on, and quite another to win indirectly when local personalities and candidacies are to be voted on apart from a presidential nominee at the head of the ticket.

Mr. Farley may be right. Mr. Roosevelt could win again in 1937 if the independent Democrats and Republicans remained apart. Mr. Roosevelt counts on this division among the so-called intelligent voters, and, judging from what has not been done thus far toward fusion or reorganized Republicans, he may be assured of a divided opposition indefinitely.

KARLOFF HAS NATURAL ROLE AS RELIEF FROM HEAVY MAKEUP PARTS

Appears As Self But Plans New 'Mystery' Thrillers

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28—Lights! Camera; Action! Times have changed, for, on the "Without Warning" set this week, Boris Karloff looks like Boris Karloff.

Gladys George

In this Warner Brothers film, the star is playing a man unjustly accused of murder and his only disguise is a gray wig, and shadowed cheek bones to make his face look gaunt.

The scene we watch takes place in an arsenal, with guns and shells standing about. This is where they find out the identity of the real murderer, so it wouldn't be fair to tell what happens. Karloff, Regis Toomey, Marie Wilson and Eddie Craven are among those in the scene. Craven is a nephew of Frank Craven and was brought out to Hollywood to play the role he created on Broadway.

There is lots of action, including gun shots, in the scene and Director John Farrow rehearses the actors carefully. One of the men helping him is Lawrence Gray, who used to be a well-known actor, but is now an assistant director.

Karloff admits it is a relief to be moving around without 50 pounds of padding, lead weighted shoes or facial makeup that makes it hard for him to register expressions or even to see what he is doing.

But, contrary to the reports you may have heard, he does not want to give up the other type of role entirely.

"A cobbler should stick to his last," he tells me. "I should like to do one makeup part out of four. But please do not call them horror pictures. I hate that. Call them mysteries."

The "makeup" part that Karloff would like to do most of all is "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Someone has scared Gladys George about the press and this fun-loving, ribald star is about the most dignified actress you meet around the lots.

She made her big hit in "Personal Appearance," a wisecracking comedy, so the movies have her playing in tear-jerkers.

Boris Karloff

She is now doing the classic of them all, "Madame X."

We watch Director Sam Wood shoot part of the famous courtroom scene, where the heroine, on trial for murder, is defended by her son, who isn't aware of their relationship.

In the midst of a dramatic interchange, the prosecuting attorney suddenly blows a line and yells "Damn it!"

Sitting in the prisoner's box, Miss George loses her dignity and bursts out laughing. So do the other actors and the extras.

The Samuel Goldwyn picture, "Marco Polo," is about an adventurer who lived in the thirteenth and the fourteenth centuries, but, between scenes, all you hear is modern slang and wise cracks.

Director Archie Mayo always kids his actors. In this cast, he calls Binnie Barnes "Binnacle Barnes, the sailor." The noisiest person on the set, he is always shouting to the others: "Come on now, let's settle down to a bedlam."

This particular scene is where Alan Hale, the husband of Binnie Barnes, is making up to his wife's hand-maiden, Lana Turner.

Miss Turner, who is Mervyn Le Roy's new discovery, is plenty easy to look at in her Oriental kimono, drawn tightly around her.

Last year she was a Hollywood high school girl, but she now behaves on the set like an old hand at the movies.

Mayo, who loves Warner Brothers like fire loves water, kids her about being a Warner starlet. But, on the side, he tells you she is a nice kid and has a future.

He watches her performance carefully to be sure that she will make a good showing.

In the scene she is pouring water out of a pitcher into a goblet.

"Hold the pitcher higher, dear," he says, "or you will look like a soda jerker."

None of the actors resent Mayo's kidding because they know he is a fine director and, besides, it keeps the company amused and helps things to go on smoothly.

Watching Mayo direct "Marco Polo" after seeing John Cromwell do the earlier scenes presents about as great a contrast as you can imagine.

Cromwell also is a good director but he is a quiet man and deadly serious about his picture making. There are very few laughs on Cromwell sets.

COMING ATTRACTIONS IN THE THEATERS

STATE

A series of yearly musical comedies is inaugurated with "New Faces of 1937," now at the State theater, to bring new talent from the entertainment marts of the world to screen audiences.

Heading the gala talent revue in the current production are such radio stars as Harriet Hilliard, Joe Penner, Milton Berle and Parkyakarkus, whose names are known to million, but whose faces are comparatively new to screen fans.

This is Penner's third picture, although he has not been seen on the silver screen for more than two years. Miss Hilliard is making her second screen appearance, the first having been in the Astaire-Rogers picture, "Follow the Fleet." Milton Berle is making his screen debut, and Parkyakarkus has been in only one other picture.

Supporting these principals are several other prominent radio personalities including Tommy Mack (Judge Hugo Straight), Bert Gordon (Count Mischa Moody, the "Mad Russian"), Patricia (Honey Chile) Wilder, Thelma Leeds, the Bryant Sisters, and the Four Playboys.

Also will be seen a galaxy of talented entertainers from the stage and from various night clubs throughout the country. Such acts as Lowe, Hite and Stanley, the Chocolateers, Bill Brady, a sensational lyric tenor; little Lorraine Krueger, clever dancer and singer, and many others are included in the all-star cast.

The story is built upon a back stage theme and five colorful production numbers are introduced during the picture. The musical score is said to be one of the brightest of the season and brings new songs that promise to be popular hits.

The musical is an Edward Small production and was directed by Leigh Jason. Roy Webb as musical director, and Charles Henderson arranged the vocals and coached the singers. Sammy Lee directed the dances.

WILMINGTON, O. — Police thought they'd reached the limit in drunken drivers when they arrested an intoxicated farmer steering a horse and buggy along a zig-zag course.

Then they met a man in the same condition—driving a tractor.

Here's Realistic Mural

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—E. A. Irvine, Missouri capitol guide, is convinced Thomas Hart Benton did a good job of painting a mural of a rural home in the capitol lounge.

A swallow, Irvine said, made several attempts to fly down the painted chimney before giving it up as a bad job.

Hitch-Hiking Owl

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho—A hitch-hiking night owl rode five miles on the headlight of Lorin Roberts' car, eating bugs attracted to the light.

"Bet he'll be out there thumbing rides again tonight," Roberts opined.

SAN FRANCISCO — "Some welcome," thought Dan W. Smith of St. Louis, mournfully, as a police siren stopped him on the San Francisco - Oakland bay bridge.

But the officer had stopped him to deliver a letter from his commission firm. It described his automobile and license plate and assumed he would go over the bridge.

DOG DAYS ARE BARGAIN DAYS

These hot Summer days are the days for bargains. This is the time when the merchant seeks to attract the customer by drastic price reductions. This is the time when the man and the woman in the street are being courted by the marts of trade.

How can you best take advantage of this opportunity? Surely not by unguided, hit-or-miss methods. How, then?

The answer lies in the advertisements in your newspaper. Read them. They are addressed to you. They are intended, in these "dog days," to apprise you of unusual offers. They comprise the day's news of high quality and low cost.

Lack Of Caution Responsible For Traffic Mishaps

Marked Increase Noticed In Number Of Auto Wrecks From Carelessness

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

THIS IS the time of year when the "week-end" is particularly popular. The desire to get to the mountains, country or seashore is universal and well understood. But, unfortunately, the importance of a safe observance of this holiday is often overlooked. Consequently, many unnecessary casualties occur.

There has been a marked increase in the number of accidents resulting from careless driving over week-ends. The desire to get to the country in a hurry may mean the taking of an unnecessary chance in traffic. This is a common cause for many a serious automobile accident. What started out to be a pleasant week-end may mean a trip to the hospital. An innocent passenger may suffer a serious injury because of some hasty careless driver of another car.

Drownings Increase

The increased popularity of swimming at this time of the year is another danger that must not be overlooked. Unnecessary risks and carelessness in swimming and diving are much too frequently overlooked during a week-end. Authorities point out that the increase in drownings is alarming. More rigid enforcement of safety rules is needed, as well as more considerate co-operation by week-enders. Take heed of this warning and avoid all unnecessary risks.

Let me remind you of the danger that is associated with excessive exposure to the sun. Very often one is anxious to obtain that envied coat of tan, within two or three days. It cannot be obtained in this manner, certainly without possible disaster. Sudden and prolonged exposure to the sun will lead to a serious burning of the body. If you are desirous of a sun tan, remember that you must expose your body gradually to the sunlight. This gradual exposure is especially advised for blond and fair individuals. Their skin is unusually sensitive to the rays of the sun and the utmost caution is required. Children and infants must be guarded against sudden and prolonged exposure to the sun.

Overeating, carelessness in the choice of food, inadequate hours of sleep, excessive fatigue and overexertion are other dangers. They must be avoided in a week-end trip. If you are to obtain the maximum benefit from your short stay in the country, it is well that you avoid these pitfalls to health. Unless these precautions are taken, you will not derive any benefit. Undoubtedly you will return to your work feeling below par, and in need of a real vacation.

sembly of one nation, with one interest, that of the whole."

The words might be recommended to the President's spokesman, Sen. Guffey, as a dignified rebuke for berating over the radio the recalcitrant Senators Wheeler, Burke and O'Mahoney, whose 20th century fault was that they exercised their delibedative judgment, instead of following the party line. Mandates issued which the member is bound blindly and explicitly to obey were not only utterly unknown to the laws of Burke's land—England—but they are utterly incompatible with the spirit of American constitutional government. They are not unconstitutional. They are anti-constitutional.

Reason, deliberation, independent judgment, personal responsibility, the appeal to the highest criterion of the public good, as away from organized pressure of one kind or another; debate, discussion, a free public opinion, uncoerced either by government threats or government bribes—these are as essential to democratic government as is majority rule, minority protection, and checks against usurpation.

These are the silent assumptions of democracy. They are the justification of democracy to reasonable men. And democracy must justify itself to reasonable men, or reasonable men will turn from it. "Must" laws are not, in the spirit of constitutional democracy, laws at all. They are decrees, and the fact that they have the support of a majority of yes-men, voting in the belief that the public can be whipped up by emotional slogans to support them, does not make them any less decrees. The assumptions that apply to congress apply as well to the electorate. It is not called upon to express the sum-total of its demands. It is called upon to express the sum-total of its wisdom.

These silent assumptions are lofty ones, to be outlawed, perhaps, by a disillusioned era. But they still have vitality for many, many people in these United States, as they have for people in all countries which still are free. They are expressing themselves in the criticism of the means used by this administration, and in the belief that the ends of political freedom cannot be served by means which violate its very basis.

Today's Book Review

By John Selby

JEAN GIONO was born 42 years ago in Manosque, in the French department called Basses-Alpes. He still lives there, although, according to his American publisher, all Paris would like to get at him.

Giono's first book published in the United States is called "The Song of the World." It is a poetic fantasy, in purport the story of the quest of two men, one of the forest and one of the river, for the son of the former. The quest takes them into sinister country, and the man of the river finds there the woman he can adore; she is blind.

The strange thing about the book is not its story, which has moments of complete unreality, even impossibility, but the tension of the emotional content. Giono is apparently not at all concerned with fact, although he does lip-service to everyday fact throughout. He is playing upon his reader like a Heifetz, pulling strange and always lovely tone from his human strings. It may be the fault of the translators that occasionally the tone is sour. Or perhaps of the earthbound perceptions of his reader. Who knows?

If the rather dark quality of the novel does not appeal, the sweet sentiment of "Life and Miss Celeste" may. This is the story of a staunch little lady, her ineffective sister, and the encroachments of time and poverty. It also is the story of the small reward that at last came to Miss Celeste and her sister. One could not call the book important, but those of its readers who ever have known a person like Miss Celeste will see how beautifully Florence Glass Palmer has drawn her in this novel.

There also is Guy Pocock's wryly amusing "Stubbs at Fifty." This explains how it was that schoolmaster believed to be "advanced" in his ideas found himself in the midst of a determinedly modern group in London, and how the strained ideas of the group might have done great damage to Stubbs had not a person named Mary showed up at the right moment. The novel is charming enough that its allegorical and other meanings may be ignored.

the dark ships

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: A lover's tiff separates Neill, a young federal agent, and Janet in Baltimore. She won't break a date with Prescott Fanning whom Neill considers a crook. Trying to check on Fanning, Neill is doped by him. Next day a mysterious phone call tells Neill that Janet's in trouble on Fanning's yacht at Absolom's Harbor. Rushing there, he finds, in a locked cabin, Fanning shot dead and Janet in a faint, a gun beside her. Seeking a hideout, Neill rows her to the disused liners kept up the river. They manage to get aboard, dodge a watchman and locate the "royal suite."

CHAPTER 12

'I Didn't Shoot Him!'

NEILL suddenly remembered that he had not eaten anything during the past strenuous 12 hours. They spread out their provender on the cabin table and he hung the flashlight upside down from the ceiling to give them light. They feasted on cold meat, bread and butter, pickles and salad, and because they were young and in love they forgot danger for a time.

"I wonder if any couple before us ever had a whole 25,000-ton ship to themselves," said Neill.

When he looked in Janet's clear eyes he was relieved of the fear that her mind was deranged. Still some of the things she said rang queerly, as when he told her he would leave her his gun and she said:

"I wouldn't know how to use it."

Neill made no comment.

Later she said tremulously, "You are so good to me, Neill!"

"Why the hell shouldn't I be good to you?" he growled.

"Not one word of reproach!"

"I'm so darn glad to get you back there's no room for reproaches."

When they had finished eating, and cleared away, Neill unrolled his coil of light rope. Even had they been able to bring it down from the deck, the Jacob's ladder was too heavy for Janet to haul up after he had gone, or to lower for him when he came again, and he planned to make a rope ladder to take its place. Cutting off short lengths for the cross pieces, he showed her how to knot them so they wouldn't slip, and the two of them worked away together under the light.

"You haven't asked me what happened," Janet said with her head down.

"You don't have to tell me now unless you feel like it."

"Certainly. You have to be told . . . Fanning was just what you said he was. I was a fool."

"We all are."

"He actually planned to carry me down to Cuba on his yacht. He said that before we got there I . . . I" She blushed deeply.

"You would become reconciled to your fate and wouldn't leave him?" put in Neill.

"Yes."

"He had a hell of a good conceit of himself, didn't he? . . . How did he inveigle you aboard?"

"He said that the yacht had been offered to him at a great bargain, and suggested that we have dinner aboard and look her over. There were some other people coming, a Mr. and Mrs. Westbrook, so it seemed all right. . . ."

"Decoys," put in Neill.

"We had dinner and afterwards when Fanning wanted to show me over the yacht the Westbrooks said it was too nice sitting on deck, so we left them there and went below. When we had looked at everything and came back on deck, they weren't where we had left them, but I thought they were somewhere about. I suspected nothing. Fanning suggested that we take a little run down the harbor to see how she worked. He said I could steer her, and I was as pleased as a child . . . Oh, what a fool I was!"

"Never mind that," said Neill. "Go on."

His Manner Changed

"We were tied up to the oil dock in Canton taking fuel oil. The sailors cast off the ropes and we went down to Fort Carroll. When I said we must turn back, Fanning's manner changed. He took me away from the wheel and a sailor steered. Fanning said we weren't ever going back any more. At first I saw that he meant it, I looked for the Westbrooks. It was then that I found they had slipped ashore while we were below.

"What could I do? We were in the mouth of the river a couple of miles from shore, and it was useless to cry for help. The sailors were all afraid of Fanning, and they couldn't help me. They steered away from the main channel so that I could not call for help if we passed another vessel. Fanning wasn't rough with me at all. He . . . he . . ."

"He made out he was in love with you," suggested Neill grimly.

"Yes. He said there would be no compulsion on me. That I should be perfectly free and my own mistress until such time as I was ready to come to him. But that was all talk. However, he gave me the after cabin to myself, and there was a key in the door so that I could lock myself in. But, oh, Neill! what a terrible night!"

"There was some kind of accident in the engine room. We were stopped for a long time, and then went on slowly. When it became light, I saw that we had run into a harbor alongside a village, but I didn't know where it was. Fanning was in an ugly temper because the accident had upset all his plans. He told me I would have to stay below as long as we lay in the harbor."

"How did you get word to me?" asked Neill.

"McGee, the engineer, had to take up part of the cabin floor to look at the propeller shaft. He was a decent sort of man; he looked as if he was very sorry for me. Fanning was with him, watching. When I learned from their talk that McGee had to go to Baltimore, I wrote your room number at the Stafford on a piece of paper. I knew you were registered under an assumed name, and slipped it to him when Fanning wasn't looking."

"Good trick!"

"All day I stayed below. They brought me my meals in the saloon. In the evening Fanning sent the rest of the crew ashore to go to the movies. Through the porthole I saw then rowing away. Shortly after that, Fanning came into my cabin without knocking, and I saw that he had turned ugly. . . . He locked the door behind him. . . ."

Janet began to shake pitifully. "That's all I can remember," she faltered. "I must have fainted through terror. The next thing I knew I was out in the saloon and you were speaking to me."

"Did you have a gun?" asked Neill.

"Yes, I forgot that. After McGee had left my cabin I found it under the sofa. I supposed that he had left it there for me."

"Where was the gun when Fanning came in?"

"Lying on the table in my cabin. . . . Why are you asking me these questions about the gun?" she added nervously.

"When I broke in the door of your cabin Fanning was shot dead," said Neill.

She stared at him in horror. "Oh, my God! What are you saying? . . . I didn't shoot him, Neill! I swear it!"

He kissed her. He didn't believe her. Most likely the truth was that she had snatched up the pistol, mad with teror, and had shot the man without knowing what she was doing. Anyhow, he loved her, and what difference did it make? In fact, he hoped that she had shot Fanning.

Back To The Hotel

He could not bring himself to question her further in her present shaken state. He said lightly:

"Hold up a minute until I measure off how much ladder we've got. It was 42 feet from the rail of the promenade deck to the water, and I figure we'll need 33 here."

Janet was as eager to drop the subject as he was, and so it was allowed to lie.

When the ladder was finished, he contrived a simple signal for the purpose of letting her know when to let it down to him. He fastened the twine to the catch of a wall cabinet and, leading it out across the little deck and through a window, let it hang overside. A single strand of brown twine would never be noticed. When it was pulled, the door of the cabinet flew open. They laughed at the simplicity of the gadget.

Wrapping Janet in the rug, Neill laid her on a dusty sofa and sat on the floor, soothing her like a child until her eyes grew heavy and finally closed. After kissing her to make sure that she slept, he went out on the little deck and, stripping off his clothes, wrapped them in the oilskin coat and tied it securely.

Slinging this bundle over his back he climbed out of the window, went down the rope ladder and slipped into the water. Janet could pull up the ladder when she woke.

When Neill emerged from the water, he saw a dim light a couple of hundred yards off to his left. After dressing and hiding the oilskin coat in the brush, he walked along the beach to investigate. It proved to be a night light in the upper window of an old farmhouse on the river bank. Below the bank was a little wharf and tied to the wharf was a skiff with oars in her. Neill noted it with satisfaction. This would be convenient for the coming night.

Making a detour around the house, he gained the driveway that served it, and was led out to the state road at a point about a mile from the village. The first faint streaks of dawn were begining to appear in the east when he reached the hotel. The outer door was unlocked and he stole up to his room without meeting anybody.

The Sunlit Road

BY TOM T. JONES

A two-story brick structure, 99-years old and now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Van Fossan, lies on high ground near the roadway south of Lincoln highway at Crawford Corner in Elk Run township.

The home, continuously occupied since it was first built was the birthplace of Attorney William Spence, who served on the district appellate court and in the county common pleas court.

It has been the scene of frequent gatherings of the clan and on Aug. 5 a reunion was held with more than 50 members of the family and guests in attendance.

Brick in the structure was made from clay mined from an adjoining plot and even today there is a slight depression in the land marking the site where the clay was excavated.

A large barn was erected near this old residence and years ago it was razed. An old stone containing the inscription, "J. F. Spence, 1870," was salvaged by Mr. Van Fossan.

This old homestead is well covered with ivy. It is referred to as the "Ivy Covered House by many. The present barn used on the farm was built in 1892.

A well near this old homestead, though not particularly deep, has always supplied watwer for those living on this farm. In places upon its several acres are numerous springs.

The Morst Libby house in Portland, Me., is one of the most sumptuous Victorian American residences remaining. It was built about 1859 by a Portland citizen who made a fortune in the New Orleans hotel business.

Blemish On Face Needs Expert Care To Avoid Permanent Injury

By HELEN FOLLETT

IN THE grand, romantic days of yore, moles were regarded as beauty spots. That led to the use of patches of black court plaster. A rather ridiculous beauty fad, if you ask us, or even if you don't. When the court of Marie Antonnette wore white wigs, patches were in high favor.

The trouble with a pet mole is that it may decide to sprunt a few fuzzers that develop into ugly bristles. The electric needle will remove them, also the mole. Only an experienced medical man should tamper with them, however. The x-ray is used, also carbonioxide snow. When the growth is thick and large, surgery sometimes is used.

Warts are even more unwelcome visitors. They consist of the elongation of the papillae of the skin and a hardening of the cuticle. They may remain the size of a pinhead or become distended into large, unsightly growths. Small ones often disappear. If development is rapid and there is a white, ragged border, seek the services of a medical man. Your blemish is a senility wart that may become malignant.

Neither warts or moles should be subjected to home treatment. There is a chance of causing a scar or of starting an infection. Professional treatment costs little and is the safer way of getting rid of them.

Overseer Of Zion, Ill., Believer In 'Level World,' Declared Bankrupt By U. S. Court

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28. — Wilbur Glenn Voliva, who ruled as overseer of Zion, Ill. more than 20 years and expounded his belief the world is flat, was a bankrupt today by decree of the federal court.

Judge Charles G. Briggle confirmed a bankruptcy action yesterday, ordering Voliva and his wife, Ida, to relinquish property valued at between $600,000 and $8,000,000 to creditors with claims of more than $1,000,000.

The decree directs Voliva to give to the federal government whatever money he has in part payment of a $50,000 claim for income taxes in 1927 and 1928.

OAKLAND TEAM HANDS CAR BARN FIRST LOSS IN CITY JUNIOR LEAGUE

Upset Makes Hot Scramble Of Second Half Chase With One Game Separating First Three Nines—West End And Klondyke Outfits Battle To 6-6 Deadlock

The East Liverpool Junior Baseball league's second half race turned into a free for all affair today following the Car Barn nine's first defeat, meted out by Oakland, 5-1, Friday.

Oakland's triumph left only a game separating the three leading teams, Car Barn, West End and Klondyke.

West End went ahead of Klondyke in the standings by virtue of a forfeit victory over Grant Street while Klondyke and the Legion aggregation, holder of fourth position, were battling to a 6-6 deadlock.

Late reports of previous games gave the Legion and Oakland additional triumphs to add to their standings.

Oakland toppled the league leaders on Proctor's one-hit pitching performance. The Oakland flinger was invincible except in the first frame when he was nicked for the lone Car Barn marker.

His mates collected five hits to make as many runs, three being pushed over in the second and the other two in the third. Howell was the only man on the field to hit safely twice.

The Legion-Klondyke affair was a nice battle. The Legion banged over two runs in each of the first two innings to take a 4-0 lead. Klondyke made two in the third to cut it down but the Legion matched that in the fourth, making it necessary for Klondyke to get four in the fifth to knot the count.

Pridemore and Reynolds pitched for Klondyke while Jamison did the honors for the Legion. Each team made 10 hits with Southall getting a triple and double and Davis a triple for the Legion. Dawson's double was the only Klondyke extra base hit.

RANK 'OUTSIDER' CAPTURES GRAND AMERICAN PRIZE

Perfect Score Necessary To Top High Class Shotgun Field At Vandalia

By The Associated Press.

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 28. — This Miami valley village picked the cotton out of its ears today as the echoes of a million shotgun shell explosions died away — marking the end of the 28th annual Grand American trapshoot program.

The week's shoot topped all previous ones in high scoring and scintillating performances, with Friday's drama-packed climax, the Grand American Handicap furnishing its usual thrills.

Frank Gray Carroll, 35, of Brecksville, O., near Cleveland, who never before had stepped upon a trap in any kind of championship competition, and who had never attended the "Grand" before, won the annual classic in the most thrilling shotgun duel the event has ever witnessed.

He's Half Of Club

Carroll, six feet four inches tall and weighing 215 pounds, is exactly half the membership of the Brecksville Gun club. The other half is J. Q. Markim. Between them they hold all the offices.

The tall Buckeye marksman, standing on the 19-yard line, turned a trick that has been performed just twice before in the "Grand" by breaking 100 targets in a row. His best previous score was 93 of 100.

But Carroll needed every one of the targets to win, for 11 marksmen finished with scores of 99 of 100. And right behind them came 13 with scores of 98, and 30 others with 97.

The scores of 99 would have won or tied for the lead in 35 of the previous 37 Grand Americans, the 98's would have been at the peak in 31, and the 97's would have won 20 of the meets. Today, however, those high scores were just "numbers," the 97's knotting for 26th place. The victory was worth about $3,000 to Carroll, $2,400 in cash and the remainder in trophies.

Hardware Merchant

The new champion is a hardware merchant, has been married 11 years, and he said he came to the "Grand" with the definite idea of winning enough prize money to pay for his vacation, which starts next week.

Don Shelton, 17-year-old Marseilles, Ill., high school boy took second money—and it was his first trip to the Grand, too—in the shoot off.

After Shelton came A. B. Springer of Metropolis, Ill., Herb Bush of Eaton, Ill., who finished second last year; and Ray Faloon of Evanston, Ill.

The professional championship went to C. T. Stevens of Zanesville, who broke 98 of 100 from 23 yards.

Yesterday's shoot was the third largest in the history of the "Grand," 940 entrants participating. Carroll was the 10th Ohioan to capture the coveted crown.

Charley (Sparrow) Young of Springfield, O., broke 100 in a row from the 23-yard line to win in 1926, while R. Thompson of Cainesville, Mo., registered the other perfect score in 1910.

Johnny Goodman Battles Ray Billows For Amateur Crown

Omaha Artist Favorite For Golf Title Relinquished By Fischer In Friday Defeat Because Of Cool Manner Under Fire To Say Nothing Of Reputation

By The Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 28.—Today was golf coronation day at the Alderwood club with the crowning of a new National Amateur champion—either Johnny Goodman of Omaha, or youthful Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Johnny was getting his second crack at the title as a finalist and he was a heavy favorite largely because of his reputation and his icy disposition under fire.

He muffed his first chance in 1932 when he was knocked off by Ross Somerville, the Canadian star from London, Ont.

Goodman and 23-year-old Billows, were down for a 36-hole struggle, the winner to gain the title relinquished yesterday by Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati whose game collapsed completely under the fancy iron work of the New York state champion.

Fischer, dropping nine strokes to par, lost to Billows, 6 and 5, the matching ending at the 31st.

Goodman, a pre-tournament favorite, had a narrow escape, 1 up, in a dizzy battle with Marvin (Bud) Ward, a young tax collector of Olympia, Wash.

Johnny had to travel to the last hole where he watched Ward boot a chance for a birdie, which would have squared the match.

Ward reached the apron on the 561-yard 36th in two, but a 60-foot chip curled eight feet to the left of the green. Goodman was on in three and laid a 40-foot approach putt within six inches of the cup to keep the one-hole lead gained at the short 32nd.

Goodman led almost all the way, his biggest margin being three holes at the seventh in the morning.

GRID WORKOUTS OPEN ON MONDAY

Uniforms Will Be Issued To 75 As Blue And White Grind Starts

Uniforms will be issued to some 75 gridiron hopefuls when the East Liverpool High school football training grind gets under way officially Monday morning.

The boys have been ordered to report to Patterson stadium early so that equipment may be handed out and actual work started by 10 a. m.

The squad will not be limited to this number. At least 100 boys are expected to participate in the sessions, which will be held twice a day until school opens on Tuesday, Sept. 7. Adequate provision will be made for all those reporting.

Coach Joe Morbito, who returns Sunday from a two-week stay at the coaching school at Northwestern university in Evanston, Ill., is particularly interested in having all candidates who will be freshmen this year attend the first session.

The morning sessions will be hard ones, with plenty of conditioning drills and workouts on the tackling and blocking dummies and the charging machine. The afternoon sessions will be confined more to specialized drills.

Although, the workouts are starting a couple of days earlier this year, the team has not too much time to prepare for the heavy 10-game schedule. Less than three weeks are available before the opening game with Lisbon, Friday night, Sept. 17.

TRIBE PILOT DEMANDS TO KNOW HIS STATUS

Bradley Makes No Promises In Answering O'Neill

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28.—Reports circulating today that Steve O'Neill won't pilot the Cleveland Indians next year sent the Tribe manager to President Alva Bradley to demand his status.

"Mr. Bradley made no promises except to say that he saw no point in switching managers just for the sake of making a change," O'Neill said after the conference.

His trip to Bradley's office was inspired by recurring reports that the post already had been offered for 1938 to Bill McKenchnie, manager of the Boston Bees of the National league.

"I explained that the rumors in circulation all through the league were most embarrassing to me, and requested a statement as to just where I stand in the club's future plans," said O'Neill, manager of the Indians since Walter Johnson was ousted in August, 1935.

"As I told Mr. Bradley, we have the kind of club that depends for its success largely on the pitching staff. With Bob Feller out half the season and Johnny Allen out for eight weeks, we naturally couldn't keep winning.

"Where would the New York Giants be, for example, without Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher?"

LEAGUE TITLE SERIES RESUMES ON TUESDAY

Laughlins, Riverview Play Exhibitions On Sunday

The Riverview Florists and the Newell Homer Laughlins will resume their battle for the Columbiana County Amateur Baseball league title at Columbian park Tuesday at 5 p. m. It will be the third game in the best of five series in which Newell has won two games.

Both teams will see action on Sunday to keep limbered up.

Newell plays the fast Warwood Miners of Wheeling, a semi-pro outfit representing the Wheeling Coal Co. It is a little above the Newell nine's class but with the way the Laughlins have been going a good encounter is expected. The game is at Clarke field in Newell.

Riverview meets East Palestine's county league team at Peace Valley park.

Newell has already arranged a Labor day battle. The Laughlins will jaunt to St. Mary's, W. Va., for a doubleheader with the Penn Oils, first half champions of the Parkersburg district league.

CANTON NINE CLOSES IN ON LOOP LEADERS

Terriers Within Half Game Of Springfield Club

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 28. — The Springfield Indians felt the breaths of the Canton Terriers hot on their heels today as the Mid-Atlantic league race became a wide-open home-stretch battle.

The Terriers took their second straight game over the Indians last night, winning 10 to 5 and reducing the Indian lead to one-half game for first place. Springfield used three pitchers in a vain attempt to break the Canton offensive, but could not overcome effective bunching of hits.

The Portsmouth Red Birds again failed to break the Johnstown jinx and lost 4 to 2 and 6 to 5 for the second and third times in the first three games of the series. Tarantola pinch hurled for the Jawns in both games, going into each in the seventh inning to retire the Red Birds when they had winning runs on base. Manager Benny Borgmann of Portsmouth made seven hits in the doubleheader.

Charleston beat Akron twice, 4 to 3 and 6 to 5, to pull the fourth-place Yankees down to within one and one-half games of Dayton. Cloyd Stith duplicated Tarantola's two-game pitching feat by halting late rallies.

The Dayton Ducks beat Zanesville 16 to 4 for the second straight time and enabled them to stay a half game ahead of Charleston for fifth place.

JACOBS HAPPIER AS BOUT PICTURE BRIGHTENS SOME

Predicts Fair Weather For Second Attempt To Stage Louis-Farr Fight

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—It seems practically everyone in the fight business has been very busy except the gentlemen in the box offices who'll take your money if you want to see Joe Louis fight Tommy Farr Monday.

Continued dreary weather yesterday did little if anything to improve the advance sale for the championship bout that was postponed last Thursday. Promoter Mike Jacobs, who has been consulting almanacs, weather prophets and probably his own wishes, waxed jubilant over the prospects, however, predicting fair weather Monday and a $400,000 gate.

"The weather will be swell. We checked the winds for a thousand miles," Mike insisted. Then he went on to explain that there already was $152,000 in the till, good bunches of tickets out on consignments and $60,000 coming from the radio rights. That made more than $200,000 already assured according to Mike's figuring and the sunny weather he was looking for today and Monday would bring the late customers trooping around.

The real business was conducted elsewhere, as the fighters returned to action in their New Jersey camps and the fight mob gathered around the Hippodrome to talk things over.

The day's principal excitement came from a report from Long Branch that Farr had been knocked flat by one of his sparring partners, Abe Feldman. Tommy and his handlers insisted he had only slipped, regardless of other versions. Jacobs said it was all good for the gate, and that was that.

Joe Gould, manager of former champion Jimmy Braddock, dropped in with the information that Jimmy definitely was slated to tackle Max Baer at Madison Square Garden Oct. 29 and that he was dickering for a bout with Farr, win or lose, in London in November.

FRANKHOUSE ELBOWS WAY TO HALL OF FAME WITH NO-HIT TRIUMPH

Brooklyn Veteran Enters Charmed Circle At Expense Of Cincinnati's Reds—Goes In By Side Door, Though, As Rain Cuts Tilt More Than Inning Short

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Like an accident going some place to happen, or a guy falling off his horse, you never can tell what spot fame will pick out to land on.

That's not taking any of the credit from curveballer Freddy Frankhouse for the no-hit, no-run game by which he checked his hat in the hall of fame yesterday. But, rated off the records, Freddy, who has kicked around the National league for 11 seasons without causing any wholesale gnashing of teeth on the part of rival batters, would certainly not be one of the 10 or 20 pitchers you'd name as most likely to turn the trick.

The same thing applied to Bill Dietrich when he did it for the White Sox against the St. Louis Browns back on June 1, or to any number of the flingers who have broken into the charmed circle. A lot of them didn't figure to come within a country mile of the stunt. Like Dietrich and Frankhouse, they were largely up-and-downers.

There it is in the record books today: Thirty-three year old Fred Frankhouse, with a record of 102 victories and 77 losses in tossing for the Cards, Bees and Brooklyns since 1927, receives credit for a no-hit, no-run game. He walked six, and a seventh man drew a life on an error as he did the job against the Cincinnati Reds by a 5-0 margin.

To be sure, it was somewhat of a side-door entrance to the hall of fame, since the game was halted by rain with two men out in the eighth inning, but it's a regulation ball game nevertheless, and the stunt stands.

Frankhouse's feat took a chunk of the spotlight away from the National league fight, which seems to be going a long way and rapidly gettin gnowhere.

With the league-leading Cubs idle in Boston because of rain, the second-place Giants had a neat chance to close some of that two-game gap in their double bill with their favorite stooges, the Pittsburgh Pirates. But the best Bill Terry's Terriers could do was split even, thereby leaving things strictly as they were. Dutch Brandt and Mace Brown of the Bucs teamed up in a four-hitter to take the opener, 1-0, after which Lefty Al Smith surprised for a 3-2 Giant triumph in the nightcap.

The Phillies turned in the day's stunner when they pinned a double dose on the nose-diving Cardinals, 4-1 and 6-3, to climb into sixth place. It's been so long since they were there they didn't even know the old place.

The Yankees increased their American league lead to 11½ games with a 4-3 victory over the Browns, largely through the clouting of Lou Gehrig. The second-place Tigers were mauled, 8-5, by the Red Sox, despite Rudy ork's seventh homer i nseven days.

Pete Appleton's three-hitter gave the Senators a 5-0 shutout over the White Sox. The Indians, as usual, trimmed the Athletics, 5-3.

Newell Eleven Called

COMPARATIVELY plentiful veteran material will lift some of the load of Coach Eugene Manson's mind when his Newell High school gridiron candidates report for their first workout Monday morning. Only three men from last year's squad will be missing. However, Manson will only have about 20 gridders available from which to whip his aggregation.

Yesterday's Stars

Lou Gehrig, Yankees—Hit homer, double and single, and scored winning run to whip Browns 4-3.

Fred Frankhouse, Dodgers — Pitched no-hit, no-run 5-0 victory over Reds in game cut to 7 2-3 innings by rain.

Billy Sullivan, Indians—Drove in two runs with double and two singles in 5-3 victory over Athletics.

Claude Passeau and Earle Browne, Phillies—Former fanned five, allowed eight hits in 4-1 opener victory over Cardinals; Browne hit two singles, driving in two runs, in 6-3 nightcap triumph.

Jack Wilson, Red Sox—Beat Tigers 8-5 with five hits.

Dutch Brandt, Mace Brown and Al Todd, Pirates, and Al Smith, Giants—Brandt and Brown combined in four-hit 1-0 opener triumph, with Todd singling winning run across; Smith stopped Bucs 5-2 with five hits nightcap.

Pete Appleton, Senators—Blanked White Sox 5-0 with three hits.

MARKET CLIMBS IN BRIEF SESSION

ail Rally Encourages Oil, Steel, Copper, Specialty Issues In Advance

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—While he stock market's appetite was far rom vigorous in today's brief ses- ion, leading issues nibbled at a ally.

A number of the long brow- eaten rails came to the fore and ncouraged quiet buying in some teels, oils, coppers and specialties.

The majority of the boardrooms ere all but deserted.

The Shanghai powder keg con- nued a source of apprehension in he financial sector, but tension ver possible international com- lications in the far east appeared o have lessened.

There was little change in the potty business and industrial pic- ure and brokers attributed the elective upturn mainly to quick- urn trades based on the theory he list was due at least for a siz- ble temporary upturn in view of he lengthy and sharp setback.

Transfers were around 300,000 hares.

Grain and cotton futures were lown most of the time. Bonds were ineven.

Up fractions to a point or more t the best were Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, U. S. Steel, Bethle- hem, American Steel Foundries, Sears Roebuck, General Motors, General Electric, Du Pont, West- nghouse Air Brake and American Water Works. Some of these gave ground before the close.

Some oils were heartened by ac- ion of the Oklahoma state corpor- ation commission in fixing the tate's crude production for Sep- tember at 600,000 barrels, a de- crease of 30,600 from the U. S. bu- reau of mines estimate. The new allowable is more than 50,000 bar- rels under probable August pro- duction.

In line with other narrowing gains over last year, it was noted the home loan bank board's index of residential building declined in July to 22 percent of the 1926 aver- age from 27 percent in June.

Attention was drawn to figures of the American Institute of Steel Construction disclosing July ship- ments of structural steel totaled 144,560 tons against 155,124 tons in the same 1936 month, with book- ings amounting to 160,970 tons compared with 199,057 tons a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Reports of light rain in parts of Argentina and forecasts of more over the week-end helped stimulate selling that push- ed wheat prices better than a cent lower early today.

September corn lost more than 2 cents and new crop contracts were at the lowest level for any corn de- livery in 14 months.

Opening ½-1½ lower, Sept. 1.05⅝-¾, Dec. 1.07½-⅝, wheat later showed lit- tle change. Corn started unchang- ed to 1⅛ down, Sept. 93⅜-94⅛, Dec. 62-62½ and later steadied.

MAX GORDON WIDOW SLAIN AND BARRELLED

ComelyWoman'sBodyFound On Rocks Beside River

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28—The body of the comely young woman found stuffed in a barrel on the rocks beside East river here yesterday was identified today as that of Mrs. Maxie (one-eyed) Gordon, no- torious narcotics peddler.

Gordon was killed in an automo- bile accident near El Paso, Tex., last July 31. He had served one prison term after being convicted on a norcotics charge in Boston.

Benjamin Joseph, a friend and guest at the same hotel where Mrs. Gordon resided in New York, led to the identification of the body today.

After reading a description of it in the newspapers, he prevailed up- on the night manager of the hotel to enter her room. They found that the bed had not been occupied. Joseph then viewed the body and identified it.

Joseph, according to police, said he had an engagement with Mrs. Gordon for Thursday night, but he was "stood up." He said he did not see the woman after that.

Tony Casanova, a beachcomber, found the barrel in which Mrs. Gordon's body was stuffed. Medical Examiner Jacob Werne said she had been stabbed nine times with an ice pick. The point of the in- strument was imbedded in her skull and a bullet was found in her brain.

SCHOOL PUPILS PACK FAIR ON OPENING DAY

vation in the fair's program, adding two days to the usual Monday start- ing time. Religious services will be held on the grounds Sunday fore- noon. The fair will end Friday.

Gov. Martin L. Davey and Agri- culture Director Earl H. Hanefeld joined in predicting record attend- ance and Hanefeld said the fair might pay its own way for the first time since it was instituted 87 years ago.

An increase in the admission price from 25 to 50 cents for adults, every day except today and Sunday, was cited as the principal factor in the expected increase in receipts.

This year's estimated expense is $180,000 or $5,000 more than last year, but Hanefeld said that might be reduced.

The prize list totals $141,000, up $8,000 from 1936.

Horse lovers will have five days of Grand Circuit racing and nightly horse shows in the coliseum. Pac- ing and trotting champions from all over the country will compete on the track.

For the first time in the fair's his- tory, space for exhibitors was at a premium, Hanefeld reporting that several hundred applications had to be rejected.

Livestock judging will begin Mon- day and continue through Friday. The 350-piece all-Ohio band, the Jackson county Welsh singers, a historical pageant and a group of radio stars will be entertainment features.

WEIR MAY CALL 7,500 WORKERS

Company Counsel Threatens Long Drawn Out Hearing In NLRB Steel Quiz

By The Associated Press.

NEW CUMBERLAND, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Counsel for the Weirton Steel Co. threatened today to sum- mon 7,500 witnesses to a labor board inquiry into the company's la- bor relations.

William T. Fahey, counsel for the employes security league, which is accused of maintaining a "hatchet gang" to attack CIO members, said the case could not be completed this year.

"Mr. Fahey's estimate seems con- servative," observed Atty. Clyde A. Armstrong, chief of the company counsel. He added:

"We will call 7,500 witnesses if necessary."

As the second week's session end- ed, a part-time preacher surprised the hearing by defending the em- ployee representation plan—termed a "company union" by the CIO— as the "best possible."

C. D. Beagle, summoned as a la- bor board witness, is a former em- ployee representative and pastor of the Church of Christ at Holliday's Cove, W. Va. He asserted that af- ter the Supreme Court upheld the Wagner labor act, President T. E. Millsop of the company called the representatives together and told them:

"Boys we'll have no further con- nection with the plan."

Since that time, Beagle said the security league had paid the repre- sentatives for their work.

"Is there any contract between the company and security league on wages?" asked a labor attorney.

"I couldn't say,' replied Beagle.

He added that employe repre- sentatives asked and won a 10 per- cent increase from E. T. Weir, chairman of the Weirton com- pany's parent organization, the Na- tional Steel Corp.

DOGS QUARANTINED AFTER RABIES SCARE

Warden Prohibits Pets On East Palestine Streets

Special To The Review.

EAST PALESTINE, Aug. 28.— City dog owners have been asked to watch their pets closely during the two weeks that the quaran- tine is in effect here in order to avoid rise of an epidemic of rabies, County Warden Dan Butch an- nounced today.

Mr. Butch surveyed the local situation yesterday and decided it would be necessary to quarantine the entire county, especially since it is impossible to determine from what part of the county the dog came which bit at least six per- sons here Tuesday.

The dog was first reported near Peace Valley park, where it at- tacked Mr. Charles Lore, park proprietor, Tuesday afternoon.

Tuesday night the dog was first seen in East Palestine and had bitten several people before it was shot by Patrolman George Nulf.

The dog's head was sent to Co- lumbus for examination by the state board of health, which sent a telegram to city officials inform- ing them the dog was infected with rabies.

One dog was shot on the streets yesterday by Chief of Police Wal- ter Warren, who advised dog own- ers that all stray canines would be shot as long as the quarantine is in effect.

$225,000 BOND ISSUE PROPOSED

4 Townships Will Vote On Plan For New Schools On November Ballot

LISBON, Aug. 28—County School Superintendent W. E. Roberts an- nounced today a bond issue for $225,000 will be placed on the November ballot for four new schools in Knox, Butler, Hanover and West townships.

Decision to place the proposal before the voters was made Fri- day night by the Western Rural board of education in charge of the four subdivisions after a count of straw ballots indicated prop- erty owners were 80 percent in favor of the plan.

Decides Building Plan

At the same time, the straw vote decided the question of build- ing one large structure for the four townships or the smaller build- ings, one for the center of each township. Rural board members said the sentiment favored the smaller buildings, although the margin of preference was not as great as the expression on the matter of the bond issue.

If the bond issue carries, schools will be erected with PWA assist- ance, with $89,000 additional es- timated as the amount the gov- ernment must contribute. The original estimate of the townships' share was $200,000. The smaller buildings will require a levy of 2.70 mills for 22 years.

The Rural board also filled two vacancies, naming Miss Lois Berger as instructor in the Hor- nets' Nest school in Hanover town- ship and Wilson Freshley teacher in the Valley school in Butler township.

LUCAS COUNTY PLANS DRIVE ON MOSQUITOES

Toledo Joins In Expensive Campaign On Pests

By International News Service.

TOLEDO, O.—Lucas county and the city of Toledo are planning a half-million dollar war on mosqui- toes.

City Manager John N. Edy has completed studies which indicate that much progress against the pests could be made with a $64,500 purchase of materials by the city and county and man-power furnish- ed by the WPA.

It is planned to spray catch- basins and pools with oil weekly and to fill in stagnant pools and marshy places.

Later, local governments may combine to set aside a small amount of tax funds annually for a permanent fight on mosquitoes.

Excessive rainfall in the early months of the year and the result- ant luxuriant growth of plant life have tended to increase the num- bers of the insects.

BRITISH POSTAL GAIN LAID TO ADVERTISING

Rapid Business Expansion Results From Campaign In Press

By The United Press.

BRIGHTON, Eng.—Great Brit- ain's postoffice, one of the most progressive and rapidly expanding businesses in the country, owes most of its success to press adver- tising. Major Tyron, postmaster- general, told the empire advertis- ing convention here.

"Press advertising continue to be a main and effective plank in our program," he said. "Judged by results it has amply paid us.

"It was confined at first to the telephone service, but has now been employed for other branches of postoffice activities. Use of ad- vertising for telegrams and tele- phones has considerably increased the public response to reductions in charges.

"With the aid of advertising tele- phone development has made un- precedented progress. During the last 12 months more than 250,000 telephones were installed, a figure never previously approached in the history of the telephone in this country. This in turn has brought about a real improvement in em- ployment.

County Couple Finds Darkest Hour Always Comes Before Dawn

Fire Wipes Out Home, Their Chance For Security But Willing Hands Help

Special To The Review.

LISBON, Aug. 28 — A good bit of the world crumpled recent- ly for two old-age pensioners liv- ing near Damascus.

They had lived many years in a home in the Quaker village. Two weeks ago their house burned down. With it went all of their furniture and their plans for a quiet old age together.

It looked like the end of every- thing. They moved the few per- sonal belongings they had salvag- ed from the flames into the house of a neighbor. The man tended a cow, a pig and 20 chickens. But their pensions were not sufficient to include rent and the state had a claim on the small insurance policy covering the house.

Today they are agreeing with the man who declared the darkest hour was just before the dawn. They have also found that kind- ly impulses are more common than reported.

A carpenter, learning of their predicament, volunteered to build them a three-room house for $500. The figure represents the actual cost and allows the volunteer no profit. Wilbur Harmon, head of the old age pension bureau in this county, then wrote to his super- iors at Columbus regarding the matter.

He was told, in effect, to use his own judgment. With this auth- orization Harmon released the in- surance money. Something like $50 will remain after the carpenter is paid and this will be used to pro- vide a bed.

Neighbors completed the benign- ant cycle when Harmon opened the way for the new home. One of them gave the pensioners chairs, another a table. It wasn't long un- til enough furniture to complete- ly outfit the house was at hand.

"They're good people and hard workers," one gruff farmer com- mented. We're glad to do what we can."

16 JAPANESE PLANES RAIN DEATH UPON 200

times, leaving a field of death and destruction a half-mile square.

The attackers swept over the sec- tor several times, leaving a field of death and destruction a half- mile square.

Widespread fires quickly licked the debris spread by the bombs and many of those who escaped the hurtling projectiles were burn- ed to death.

Shrieks of the war-maddened Chi- nese populace rushing wildly in every direction mingled with the groans of the dying and the roar of the spreading flames.

Nantao Veritable Inferno

Nantao became a veritable in- ferno.

The raid was another of Japan's remorseless campaign to terrorize non-combatant areas. Chinese au- thorities said the airmen had no particular target but were only try- ing "to terrify and intimidate help- less citizens."

Some of the explosives killed and wounded many laborers who were repairing a railroad. The raid came at the busiest hour of the day.

It was possible the airmen were trying to destroy the south station of the Shanghai-Hangchow railroad and the Shanghai municipal admin- istrative buildings, but if so their aim was bad. Their bombs, in- stead reaped a shocking harvest of death among the humblest of Shanghai's civilian population.

Whole masses of shrieking hu- manity moved in giant waves to- ward any haven of safety, only to find the way cut off on all sides.

When they clamored at the gates of the French concession, to the north and west, they were turned away. The French concession al- ready was overflowing with Chi- nese refugees.

Barred From Concession

Barred from the French conces- sion, the maddened throngs fled toward the Whangpoo river to the east. In other districts some of the fear-crazed men, women and children thrust themselves through barbed wire entanglements.

The most tragic aspect of today's slaughter was presented by the scores of little children. Lester hospital alone admitted 100 of the wounded little ones.

Flames shot into the sky the moment the first of the initial car- go of explosives was loosed. They spread rapidly through the closely- built frame structures of Nantao and were visible for miles.

This writer had an unobstructed view of the entire raid. The deep, throaty roar of the Japanese planes heralded their approach.

I saw eight planes flying up the Whangpoo river from Woosung. The large bombers went straight to their grim task while three smaller pursuit ships wheeled about, pro- tecting them from a possible coun- ter-attack by Chinese planes.

These two squadrons were fol- lowed by eight more ships and their pursuit ship escorts. They too car- ried death into Nantao. After the first criss-crossing of the terrified area, during which I could see the dark specks of the bombs hurtling down, the raiders vanished in the clouds, reappeared for another on- slaught, then ducked into the clouds again, apparently in with- drawal.

I saw the flash of the bombs as they struck, then came the rumble of each explosion. A pall of smoke with contrasting sheets of flame piercing it here and there soon shrouded the field of death.

In 1610 the total white popula- tion of the territory which since has become the United States was 210.
